LUCKY COLONIAL OFFICIALS

FERQUENT LEAVE PROPOSED

OPPORTUNITY TO
TRAVEL BY AIR

RECOMMENDATIONS OF COMMITTEE

London, Nov. 13.
Recommendations which may affect the leave of Colonial servants in Hongkong, were made public to-day.

The recommendations were contained in a report of a Committee, presided over by the Earl of Plymouth, and which was appointed in 1932 by Sir Philip Canlitte-Lister, Secretary of State for the Colonies. This Committee has been considering the questions of leave and passage as they apply to the Colonial service.

The Committee recommends, inter alia that in the case of senior officers the length of tour shall be from two to three years, and the leave allowance five days in each month of each year, and that in the case of junior officials the length of tour shall be from three to four years with four days per month leave allowance.

All leave allowance will be exclusive of time taken in voyages.
It is proposed that leave shall be granted on a basis of full salary.
It is further recommended that if an officer travels by air, the Government should pay his full fare, and also that of his wife if she accompanies him, and the officer should be granted an extension of leave equal to half the difference between the time taken on the air journey and the standard period for a sea voyage.—Reuter.

Wealthy Chinese Murdered

MOTOR BANDITS KILL THREE

Shanghai, Nov. 14.

A sensation has been created in local Chinese circles by receipt of the news from Hangchow that Mr. Sze Liang-zai, Managing Director of Shun Pao, a leading Chinese newspaper at Shanghai, was murdered while travelling by the Shanghai-Hangchow Highway yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Sze Liang-zai recently made a tour of Hangchow in company with his family and was returning to Shanghai yesterday by private motor car. When his car was passing a point in Haining District, it was met by another motor, which was proceeding in the opposite direction, carrying a number of gunmen.

The gunmen ordered Mr. Sze's car to stop, but his driver refused to obey their order and drove on at full speed. Thereupon, the gunmen gave chase and opened fire, killing Mr. Sze, his driver and another person. The murderers escaped.

Mr. Sze's body was struck by shots, while his wife and son fortunately escaped. The bodies of the three victims have been removed to Hangchow.

Besides being well-known as a Chinese newspaper magnate, Mr.
Sze was one of the most prominent persons in educational, social and philanthropic endeavours, being

NEW TRIAL FOR DOKE

Honour Slaying In California

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received, November
11, 8.40 a.m.)

Woodland, Cal. Nov. 13.

The second trial of Judson Doke, Great War veteran and confessed slayer of Lamar Hollingshead, university student and poet, is to take place on December
4. It was announced to-day.
The jury failed to agree at the first trial.

Doke shot Hollingshead
after he had discovered
what he considered positive proof of intimacies between the poet and Mrs. Helen Louise Doke, pretty young wife of the ex-soldier.—
United Press.

The unwritten law is to be pleaded in the case in which Judson C. Doke is charged with the murder of Lamar Hollingshead, California poet, son of the former's wife, Helen Louise Doke, who is seen above.

VIOLENCE FEARED IN NEW YORK

FINANCIAL CENTRE PATROLLED

New York, Nov. 13.

Following rumours of a walk-out by the building service employees, hundreds of police have been drafted to offices in the financial district of New York, including the Stock Exchange building, the J. P.
Morgan company and forty other business blocks.

Fifty mounted policemen are also on duty in the district, while the centres of the garment manufacturing industry are guarded by 600 armed constables.
The President of the local garment makers' Union has charged some of the garment trade employers with violating agreements framed after the last strike.
The truce between the union and the owners expired last year.—

MacDONALD AND HULL ANNOUNCE POLICIES

FOLLOW SAME PEACE PATH

NO HOPE OF ACCORD AT NAVAL TALKS?

BRITISH PREMIER'S SOLEMN VOW

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received, Nov. 14, 8.40 a.m.)

Washington, Nov. 13.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, IN ENGLAND AND AMERICA, MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD AND MR. CORDELL HULL RESPECTIVELY AN-NOUNCED THAT THEIR GOVERNMENTS
WERE PURSUING A COURSE WHICH, IT WAS HOPED, WOULD MAKE POSSIBLE THE COMPLETE CONTROL OF INTERNATIONAL ARMS MANUFACTURE AND TRAFFIC IN MUNITIONS. BUT, AT THE SAME TIME, AMERICAN SPOKESMEN INTIMATED THAT
THE UNITED STATES, FEARING THE COL-LAPSE OF NAVAL CONVERSATIONS, HAD IN MIND A FORMIDABLE WARSHIP BUILDING PLAN.

The States Department has tacitly admitted that the United States has practically abandoned any hope of an immediate general disarmament agreement. Mr.
Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said to-day that the United States was working for an immediate international agreement for the control of manufacture and traffic in arms and munitions.

Mr. Hull added the effort would be pushed without waiting for any general disarmament agreement.
Mr. Hugh Wilson, American delegate to the Disarmament Conference, had already sounded Mr.
Matsudaira, the Japanese diplomat,
on Japan's attitude in the matter.—
United Press.

CLEARING THE WAY.

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received, November
11, 8.40 a.m.)

The American naval programme for the immediate future is assuming a shape which is regarded as doubly important due to the indications that the international naval agreements may collapse.

The proposal of Congressman
Vinson for the building of two giant drillships is one feature of the new move towards higher efficiency in naval and air armament. Then, too, the Budget Bureau is reported to have approved of expenditure of necessary money for the building of 24 warships in 1935, under the Vinson programme.

High naval officers, finally, declare they have little faith in pocket battleships, saying they are not able to withstand the attacks of the huge capital ships. It is indicated, therefore, that the United States will build heavy vessels if she undertakes a naval extension plan.—
United Press.

HOPE ABANDONED.

Washington, Nov. 13.
The United States has abandoned hope for an immediate general disarmament agreement and Mr.
Cordell Hull announced to-day that Mr. Hugh Wilson, delegate to the Disarmament Conference, had been asked to sound European and Asiatic powers as to whether they would become parties to the draft agreement.—Reuter.

ing of an arms traffic control
agreement.—Reuter.

MACDONALD'S PLEDGE.

London, Nov. 13.

As he stood before the Cenotaph on November 11,
he vowed Great Britain should be an instrument in making war a thing of the past, declared Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, when speaking in Southampton to-night.

The Government, he said, was zealously pursuing a policy of peace. He was working day and night to diminish the world's armaments, and would accept no defeat.
With regard to the private manufacture of arms and armaments, there were thousands of unemployed in Britain, he said, because the Government had refused to allow the manufacture of war weapons for certain purposes.

"Yet when we urged an embargo on arms to Japan and China
during the Manchukuo troubles, other countries would not agree to it," the Prime Minister recalled.
"The way to handle this armaments manufacturing business is to extend the licensing system and make it international. We are going to get that done at Ganeva as soon as possible," he added.—Reuter.

DOMINIONS INFORMED.

London, Nov. 13.
A meeting took place at the Dominions Office to-day between United Kingdom Ministers, including the Foreign Secretary, Sir John Simon, and the representatives of the Dominions and India.

Andrew Mellon, who is again facing charges of evasion of income tax.

Federal Finger In Mellon's Jam Pot

$2,000,000 CLAIM FOR EVADED TAX

Washington, Nov. 13.

"It is impertinent, scandalous and improper," declared Mr. Andrew Mellon, American financier and multi-millionaire, when replying to a claim of the Internal Revenue Bureau for about U.S.$2,000,000 additional income tax, allegedly due from him for the year 1931.

In his reply to the Bureau's charges, Mr. Mellon denied he owed more money to the Government and contended that his 1931 income tax report was properly prepared.
Mr. Mellon recently faced a federal court on similar charges for evasion of income tax returns for another period, and paid a large sum to the Treasury.—Reuter.

DANGEROUS BLAST IN NAVY YARD

Hundred Acetylene Tanks Blow up

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph. Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1911. Received, November
11, 8.40 a.m.)

Boston, Nov. 13.
One hundred gas tanks in the acetylene plant of the Charlestown Navy Yard exploded to-day, killing one man and doing damage
estimated at U.S.$175,000.
At first there was some apprehension lest the explosion should affect the ammunition depot or start a serious fire, but quick precautionary measures avoided a more serious loss.—United Press.

Dominions Secretary Mr. J. H.
Thomas, and representatives in London of the Dominions and India.

The object was to place informally before the latter the latest position with regard to the naval conversations with foreign Governments which for some weeks past have been proceeding.
—British Wireless.

NAVAL TALKS.

London, Nov. 13.
In connection with the naval conversations, a further meeting between British and United States delegations will take place to-morrow.—British Wireless.

FLANDIN'S SECURITY

Strong Vote Of Confidence

Paris, Nov. 13.

The Flandin Government today secured a strong vote of confidence in the Chamber, 422 to 118. The vote was one of the most definite ever given a French Government. Premier Flandin, successor to M. Doumergue, even gained some Socialist support, for there are 133
Socialists in the Chamber.
Out of 600 deputies,
there were only 60 abstentions.
The vote of confidence for M. Doumergue's Government in February last was only 402 to 125.—

Bank Clerk Leaps To His Death

IMPALED ON SPIKED WALL

A terrible tragedy occurred at Shamshuipo yesterday afternoon when a Chinese bank clerk named Chiu Tai-ying threw himself off the roof of 18 Fuk Wing Street and was impaled on railings fixed to a wall at the rear of the premises. Four spikes entered his body and one passed through his arm.

The man was employed at the National Commercial Savings Bank, and was 32 years of age.

It appears that Chiu was walking down Fuk Wing Street with father and wife when suddenly he threatened to commit suicide. Breaking away from his relatives he ran up the stairs of No. 18 and clambered on to the roof. He went to the rear side and threw himself over the edge. As he fell he turned on his side and fell lengthwise along the top of the spiked boundary wall between No. 18 and No. 20.

The Police were notified immediately and the Mongkok fire brigade summoned. When the Brigade arrived two ladders were placed on either side of the wall and the spikes were cut through just below the body. A rope was then tied to the body which was hauled up to the roof.
The deceased lived at 137, Fa Yue Street with his wife and four children.

INDIA CONGRESS PARTY GAINS

ANTICIPATE SLIM MAJORITY

MANY WOMEN GO TO POLLS

Bombay, Nov. 13.

From the results of the elections to the Legislative Assembly announced, the India Congress Party hopes to be in a position to fight the Government with a narrow majority.

The Congress Party has won all four contested non-Mohammedan divisions. It has already been announced that they hope to capture fifty seats.

Meanwhile, they will have support from the Malaviya group, in all probability. This section normally votes with the Congress Party. Six of the Malaviya candidates are expected to be returned.
There has been an increase in the number of voters compared to the last elections, and the unusually large number of women who used the ballot for the first time provided a feature of the polling.—Reuter.

JAPAN'S TRADE COMPETITION

The industrial competition which Japan is offering to other countries is still the subject of worldwide attention. It will be of interest, therefore, to take notice of the Japanese view of the problem and more particularly of the effects of increased Japanese expansion on the industrial and social standards of other countries. This has been set forth at some length in a reply to figures quoted by the Director of the International Labour Office showing the marked rise in Japan's overseas trade from 1931 to 1933. The first point made is that to take the figures for 1931 is to create an erroneous impression of the situation, since that was an abnormal year. It is contended that as compared with 1929, Japanese exports last year showed a decrease of 14 per cent. in value, and, as compared with 1925, a decrease of 26 per cent. Moreover, the foreign trade of Japan in 1933 represented only 3.09 of world trade, whilst the increase in the nation's total trade between 1929 and 1933 did not amount to more than 0.23 per cent. and the increase in export trade to only 0.20 per cent. It is claimed that many countries notably France, Britain and Belgium, have increased their trade to a much greater extent than Japan. A point to be kept in mind, however, in taking trade values is the extent of the depreciation of the yen in terms of other currencies. One of the most interesting submissions made is that by her foreign trade, Japan is contributing to the industrial recovery of the countries with which she is trading. In support of this point, it is stated that with her scanty natural resources, Japan is compelled to buy most of her raw materials from abroad—38 per cent. of the iron, 40 per cent. of the wheat, and 100 per cent. of the cotton and wool which she requires. It is thus argued that should Japanese exports be suddenly checked and her imports correspondingly decrease, the people who will suffer most directly will be the manufacturers of the industrial nations of the West and the producers of raw materials the world over. These points are illuminating as showing how Japan views this big problem, especially also in view of the further contention that Japanese progress in recent years is due more to increased efficiency and technical advancement than to exploitation of the country's workers. None the less, it is beyond dispute that Japan has immensely expanded her overseas trade, and nothing is to be gained by efforts designed to show that the advance has not been very marked. News from all parts of the world show the facts to be other-

NOTES OF THE DAY

BANKERS BLUNDER

Commercial banks in the United States failed to grasp their opportunity; they failed to rally to the support of industry by extending loans, desiring a high degree of liquidation. Now, it appears, the Government will take unto itself the responsibility of extending credit to business, through the establishment of a central bank early in 1935. Everyone knows that there has been something radically wrong with the American banking system. Whether the Central Bank scheme will solve the whole problem remains to be seen. Already the Government has taken in hand much of the business that might ordinarily have been done by the banks, and a little more besides, lending freely in an effort to strengthen the industrial fabric of the nation, extend credit, employment and trade. It may be presumed that the American administration is experimenting with this banking machinery and that its present operations will determine the policy of the future. In any event, the banks have been brought under closer scrutiny and there is certainly less likelihood of a repetition of the epidemic of failures which caused the panic through the years of depression. Something accomplished, something done!

BIDDING FOR TRADE

It is probably that Japan has got her teeth most firmly fixed in the trade bone for which the exporting nations are contending in South America. Without the guidance of up-to-date figures, the present trend cannot be calculated, but there has been a slackening of world export business to South America generally. The one exception to the rule is Japan. According to one authority Japan has attained a position in some markets from which she will never be dislodged. What makes the Japanese position extraordinary secure is the fact that the Pacific continually pour through the open doors of the South American republics. Once established, they create a demand for Japanese goods. While Great Britain and the United States have had a major share of developing heavy industries in South America, and have got into the country on the ground floor, so to speak, they have perhaps neglected the host of less remunerative opportunities, and Japan has seized upon them.

DANGEROUS DRUGS

One trembles to think what might have happened to many civilized communities if the dangerous drug traffic had been allowed to develop unchecked after the War. New drugs have been discovered and new methods and opportunities of production developed which have added enormously to the difficulties of both national and international control. Fortunately the machinery which the League of Nations has established for dealing with the problem is of a flexible character and can be altered and adapted to meet an ever-changing situation. That is why new drug Conventions have to be adopted at fairly frequent intervals and why there are several bodies, and not merely one, dealing with the matter, each of course responsible for one particular aspect of the problem. Two of the three League bodies dealing with the drug menace recently met. One of these is the Supervisory Body set up by the 1931 Convention for the Limitation of the Manufacture of Dangerous Drugs, which met at Geneva at the beginning of October. The other is the Permanent Central Opium Board which met on October 18.

COLLECTING STATISTICS

This Board collects the statistics from different Governments regarding the amounts of the various dangerous drugs which they require for medical and scientific purposes. This enables the legitimate traffic in dangerous drugs to be properly controlled. The statistics are also of course of vital importance to the Supervisory Body in its task of controlling manufacture. There is one other form of international control which sooner or later will have to be effected, and that is the control of the production of the raw materials. Already the League has discussed the matter but a great deal of preparatory work will have to be done before a conference can be called to deal with the problem. It was announced yesterday that China has gone far in controlling the narcotic traffic within her borders, and the efforts of the Government must call for world approval.

wise. Whilst there is something to be said for the argument that newly-industrialised peoples must be permitted to develop their trade, it is obvious that there is a danger in permitting the resulting international competition to lead to a lowering of the standard of living in the more advanced countries. The process of adjustment should be through levelling-up rather than by levelling-down, and this can only be done by the gradual abandonment of the lower standards.

LATEST ASSAULT ON BRITISH LIBERTY

D.N. PRITT, K.C., EXPLAINS
THE "MENACE" IN BRITAIN'S
NEW SEDITION BILL.

THE Sedition Bill has become notorious as an onslaught on the liberties of the subject. Attacks on it have come from every political quarter, and the Government has showed its hesitation by amending the original draft. But even in its present form the gravest objections remain, and since the Government threatens to pass it into law it is clear that they need restating.

These objections are, firstly, that the Bill would render criminal many legitimate and valuable human activities; and, secondly, that it introduces a highly vexatious right of search.

What are these activities which are to be penalised? After providing in Section 1 that it shall be an offence to try to seduce any member of the forces from his duty, the Bill proceeds to make it an offence to have documents in one's possession "with intent to commit" the offence of trying to seduce the troops from their duty.

Examination shows that this is far worse than it sounds for it is clear that any written argument addressed to the troops urging that killing or fighting is wrong, or that unarmed strikers protesting against intolerable conditions of labour should not be shot down, would constitute an offence.

The great evil of the Bill is that it not merely prevents these arguments being addressed to the troops, but also very effectively prevents them being addressed to anyone else. The only practical method nowadays of addressing arguments to the public is to print them; and, if one publishes printed matter, one is bound to contemplate that among one's readers there will certainly be some members of the forces.

Now, it is a well-known rule of law that one must be taken to contemplate the natural consequences of one's own acts; and it follows that nobody can safely print anything for general publication if it contains any argument that might weaken a soldier's allegiance.

It is clear that the result of the Bill would be to remove into the criminal classes all active writers in the Society of Friends and the various pacifist organisations.

The other main objection to the Bill, that relating to the power of search, is equally serious.

In many Continental countries the police have wide powers of entry into private houses to search for evidence of supposed offences; and it is well known that when such powers are freely used all real freedom of discussion tends to disappear and life becomes quite intolerable to many ordinary people, and above all to those citizens, valuable, but sometimes unpopular, who are of "advanced" views.

It has long been one of the principles of English government that police powers of entry and search should be jealously restricted, and the last serious efforts to widen such powers without justification were rejected in scathing language by Chief Justice Camden in 1795. Yet, in 1934, it is sought by this Bill to create wide powers of search, amounting to a very grave inroad into our civil liberties.

The Bill proposes that, to obtain the warrant, a police inspector must get two justices of the peace to meet together (not in public, and in the absence of the parties involved), and must then tell them the facts which make it reasonable to suspect that someone (not necessarily the person whose house is to be searched) may have done some act made punishable by the Bill.

No more than that is needed to obtain the warrant.

Now let us see what powers it confers. It gives the inspector power to enter by force at any hour of the day or night during the following month any premises or place named in the warrant. Neither the premises, nor any person or thing on them, need be connected in any way with the suspected offence; all that is necessary is that the premises should be named in the warrant.

Once inside, the inspector and his officers may search without restriction the premises and everything they can find there, whether thought to have any connection with the matter or not. And they may seize and take away with them anything which they "have reasonable grounds for suspecting" to amount to any evidence that an offence under the Act has been committed.

Here again the position is worse than appears at first sight; for as the law stands at present anyone who is lawfully searching any premises is entitled, if he has the good fortune to find anything that gives some evidence that anyone has committed any criminal offence whatsoever, to seize that thing. The result is that, once a search warrant is granted under this Bill, the police would be entitled to seize and take away from the premises and from the persons there anything seeming to indicate that any one of the innumerable criminal offences known to the law had been committed by anyone whatsoever.

Small wonder in the circumstances that, after much Government indignation had been displayed against the charge of attempting to introduce "General Warrants," the Attorney-General in the House of Commons let the reactionary cat out of the bag with the remark that the "Bill is to enable an answer to be given to any successor of Chief Justice Camden who asks: 'Where is the law which allows a general warrant to be issued?' If this Bill is passed we shall turn to it and say: 'This is the authority for the magistrate.'"

The Very Idea!

WHAT BOOTS IT?

By George

DEAR George, I was much impressed by the House of Rothschild film during the week-end and I must say it is a lesson as to what can be done with a few dollars, chop them never so badly.

The rumour that George Arliss is in the Colony has been traced to a drunken friend of mine who saw a middle aged man in the Gloucester Building about to pay his chits, with dignity.

Anyway I understand that the Hotel refused to accept dignity in payment—which explains why our account has been stopped.

I have had the good fortune to get a pre-view of the Janet Gaynor shoes which have been transported at great risk and expense from Hollywood, and find that they fit me exactly.

I take a size eight usually but a little razor paring will bring me down to threes and get rid of a couple of corns as well.

Chinese shoe makers are anxious to get a copy of the shoes to flood the market with them and I am dreading the embarrassment of the management when a full house of women stand up to compare their shoes with Miss Gaynor's on the screen and find that she has discarded about 2,000 pairs of footwear in three styles.

By the way I see that Hag Kates of the Wheelers has cycled 1,405 miles. Can any reader tell me how this is possible considering the short roads we have here?

I see another friendly match was held during the week-end in which not a player was assaulted or sent off and the referee escaped practically intact. What is wrong with the competitive spirit in local sport to-day?

I must go now as I have just been reading the Pursuit of Health column and must run after my doctor.

Yours faithfully,
Aunt Emma.

Reflecting the fall in silver prices in London, the Hongkong dollar declined 3/4th this morning to 1s. 7 1/2d. The local market opened easy, inter-bank business being done at 1s. 7 1/2d., but later a steeper tone was evident, rates advancing 1/16th. Silver declined 3/4th in London yesterday. China and speculators sold, while speculators and India bought at the fall, the market closing quietly steady.

YET ANOTHER
MURDERMAN FOUND STABBED
TO DEATH

Grass from a spot off Tai Po Road, near its junction with Cheungshawan Road, shortly before ten o'clock last night, attracted the attention of a passerby. He found a man obviously in great distress lying on the ground, but was unable to understand what the man said in a dialect thought to be Hakka. When the man who made the discovery returned to the spot with the police some half-an-hour later, the victim of what appears to be murder, with robbery as a possible motive, was already dead. He had been pierced through the lung, the triangular shape of the incision suggesting that the weapon used was one fashioned from a file of that shape. The murdered man was dressed in navy blue cotton clothes, with black shoes and socks and a felt hat. His appearance suggested that he was a foki or one not much accustomed to rough labour.

MURDER CHARGE

ARSENIC POISON CASE
RESUMED

A large number of Chinese were attracted to the Kowloon Magistrate's Court, when the case in which Pun Cho-on, a vegetable gardener, is charged with the murder of his employer, Chik Wing, by administering arsenic in his food on August 7, was resumed before Mr. E. J. Wynne-Jones. The people crowding in the doorway were quickly dispersed, and those standing in the courtroom were requested to leave before the case commenced. Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney-General, appeared for the Crown, and was assisted by Inspector A. J. W. Dorling. Ko Kam-yung, the wife of deceased, was again called, and after being cautioned that she need not answer any question which would endanger her liberty, continued examination by Mr. Fraser. Witness said that after eating the congee, deceased complained of being ill, and continually vomited. On being questioned by her husband, witness denied having put anything into his congee. Later witness heard the deceased asking defendant the same question. When the remainder of the congee had been thrown into a chicken trough, a sediment was found on the bottom of the pan. Deceased on feeling ill sent his foki, Chik Hui, to get some fried turnip slices, which were boiled in water by witness and given to her husband as an antidote. Afterwards Chik Hui was sent for medical aid. The pan was lying about at that time but was finally washed by witness.

"It's Merely Arsenic." After witness had seen the first pup die, after eating the congee in the trough, witness asked the defendant what he had put in it. To this question defendant did not reply, but when it was put to him again he said, "It's merely arsenic." Witness then asked him whether he had any more. In reply to this question defendant replied, "I've thrown the rest away into the bushes near the water pool." Witness denied having put any poison of any description into the congee. On being asked yesterday whether he had any questions to put, defendant said, "I don't know anything about the poison. Witness is accusing me but I am innocent."

Mr. J. L. Tetley, Government Analyst, gave evidence of having received the trough and the other exhibits for examination. Witness scraped and chipped the inside of the trough, and on examining this he found it to contain 2 1/2 grains of arsenic. On November 9, witness received a small rock-like substance and this was found to contain 7.7 per cent of arsenic. When witness opened the stomach of the deceased he found the lining to be inflamed in small patches, but it contained no visible particles. Case Formally Remanded.

Mr. J. H. B. Lee produced a document which he stated was a deposition taken by him from a man named Chik Wing, at the Kowloon Hospital on August 7. This had been in his custody since the day it had been taken. Further evidence was given by Detective-Sergeant J. Allen, and the case was formally remanded for one week.

MAINLAND AMENITY

POST OFFICE TO OPEN IN KOWLOON TONG

For the convenience of Kowloon Tong residents, a small post office has been erected in Waterloo Road, near Essex Crescent, and will be opened for business at 8 a.m. to-morrow.

Like the one which has been operating in Kowloon City for the past two or three years, the new post office, which is in reality a kiosk, will have stamps for sale, facilities for posting letters as well as parcels, and for registration of mails. The local postal authorities are doing everything they can to improve the facilities on the mainland. The opening of the new Post Office in Kowloon Tong will mean a tremendous saving of time and trouble for residents of that locality.

Also for Shamshui. It is also announced that another kiosk, with the same facilities as will be offered at Kowloon Tong, will be opened in Shamshui next week.

The engagement is announced of Mr. P. A. Obouhoff, n.d.c. Eng. (Lon.), an engineer attached to the General Electric Company, Hongkong, and Miss Lella Coloddy-Mamleeva, of 7, Middle Road, Kowloon.

NEW DIPLOMACY

ADDRESS BY SIR
WILLIAM HORNELL

"The statesmen of the post-war period have endeavoured to create an artificial sense of security by multiplying security pacts. But until the world is convinced that these pacts are regarded by the sovereign democracies as involving their own responsibilities they merely serve to inflame the curiosity of international contract and thereby to diminish certainty rather than to increase confidence," remarked Sir William Hornell, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Hongkong, in his address entitled "Diplomacy—Old and New," which he delivered yesterday at the Rotary Club tiffin.

After dealing at length with the psychological effect of the war on Europe and the process of devolution which had been taking place within the British Empire since 1918, Sir William said the main distinction between the methods of the new and old diplomacy was that the former aimed at satisfying the immediate wishes of the electorate, whereas the latter was concerned only with the ultimate interests of the nation.

F. A. AND THEIR SCHOOLS COACHING PLAN

ONLY NIBBLING AT VERY VITAL QUESTION

NECESSITY OF SPENDING MORE MONEY TO ENSURE SUCCESS

By Frank M. Carruthers.

The old school of football legislators seem to find it hard to acquire the outlook of to-day, and it is on this account that I am apprehensive concerning the scheme which is being prepared for the coaching of schoolboys.

A scheme on similar lines was first drawn up five or six years ago, but it was dropped into a convenient pigeon hole and it remained there until last year.

Then it was reported that it was to be launched on a big scale covering the whole country and embracing not only the schoolboys but amateur clubs. But once more it was dropped or forgotten.

Now it has been brought forward again in a restricted form and I am wondering whether it will again be shelved.

The special committee appointed to deal with the scheme met on October 15 and they must have been encouraged by the remarkable response which not only the public schools, who are still faithful to the Association game, but the elementary and secondary schools have already made to the proposal. Without exception the reply was, "We should welcome coaches to visit our schools."

There is an enormous opportunity to start a work which I think is bound to have splendid results in improving the standard of play of the boys, and it should not be forgotten that the juniors of to-day will be the seniors of to-morrow.

WHAT A TITLE.

At the moment the scheme is known as "Instructional classes for boys."

What a title! Whoever was responsible for it was surely lacking in imagination and had no vision or conception of the scale on which the scheme might be developed.

It ought to be known as the "National coaching scheme," and unless it is promoted boldly and enthusiastically it will be in danger of falling through its restricted operation.

"What is it going to cost?" Some members of the association are all hot and bothered about this question.

I suggested that the F.A. ought to be prepared to sanction an initial outlay of £5,000 or more and afterwards to finance the working of the scheme each year. I do not see how the expense can be less if the object is to be realised.

I was told, "The sum you suggest is ridiculous. We cannot afford it."

The F.A., with their assured income, ought to be pleased to find so good a way of putting back into the game a trifling part of the huge sum they have taken out of it.

It is in this way that they insist that the clubs should use their money as the alternative to boarding it.

An instructional film has been suggested, and the first query is, "What will it cost?"

And what will the coaches cost? The point I would make is that unless a scheme commensurate with the needs of the game is carried out the proposal had better again be deferred until someone bolder and with an adequate conception of the position is entrusted to tackle it.

DIRECTING HEAD WANTED.

The scheme will require considerable organisation, and I believe it will be a mistake to allow the county associations to carry it out.

There ought to be a directing head, a chief coach who would supervise the work of the staff and be responsible to the association.

I know of no one better fitted for such a position than Arthur Grimdell, an old player of great character and distinction with Tottenham Hotspur, and who in recent years has undertaken considerable coaching work with Oxford University and other amateur teams.

Some authority, too, ought to lay down the lines on which the boys should be coached. In every case the system should be the same, and in this way it might be possible to establish an official style of English football.

The Transfer Market

THERE is still a certain amount of activity in the transfer market. At the moment wingers are in great demand, especially by First Division clubs. Since Joe Hulme has been dropped from Arsenal side he has been sought after by others. Indeed, one club has made a definite approach for Hulme's services.

Another club in need of a winger is Norwich City, whose immediate need is someone to take the place of the injured Varnes. Wood, of West Ham United, is likely to be seen shortly in the Norwich colours.

Preston North End have secured the transfer of Vernon, an inside or centre-forward, from Bury. He should add dash to the clever North End attack.

INTERNATIONAL GAME

London, Nov. 13. Great interest is being displayed in the Association football match to be played to-morrow at Highbury, London, by teams representing England and Italy.—British Wireless.

FRIENDLY HOCKEY

H. K. S. R. A. Defeat Borderers

In a fast friendly hockey match played on the Siarua ground yesterday afternoon, the Hongkong and Singapore Brigade, Royal Artillery, defeated the South Wales Borderers by three goals to one. Exchanges were fast and the game was keenly contested.

In the first half, the Brigade attacked early, Lieut. C. C. Gartwallo finding the net. Before the interval, however, the Borderers equalised through their centre-forward, Johnson.

With the scores level on resumption of play, both teams strove hard to obtain the lead. Eventually, the Brigade penetrated the Borderers' stout defence, and scored through Lance-Naik Khuda Bux. Before the final whistle was sounded, Lance-Naik Aya Singh, the Brigade centre-forward, scored a third goal and put the issue beyond doubt.

"EQUAL RIGHTS"

GERMAN DESIRE FOR CO-OPERATION

London, Nov. 13. Interviewed by Reuter regarding a report that he had called on the Lord Privy Seal (Mr. Anthony Eden) to-day to discuss the re-entry of Germany to the League of Nations and the Disarmament Conference, conditional on her release from the military clauses of the Treaty of Versailles, Herr von Ribbentrop (Herr Hitler's envoy) declared that he knew nothing about such a visit. It was probably a fantasy, he declared. "Germany wants European solidarity and co-operation on a basis of equal rights for all," said Herr Ribbentrop. "Only such co-operation can bring a return of prosperity."—Reuter.

SERIAL STORY

The Clue Of The Forgotten Murder:

By CARLETON KENDRAKE

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

CHARLES MORDEN reported for The Blade, telephoned his newspaper an exclusive story about FRANK B. CATHAY of Riverview, wealthy and prominent, brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and accompanied by a pretty young woman who calls herself MARY BRIGGS, hitch-hiker.

Next day it is learned that the man was an impostor. The real Cathay demands damages and a retraction. DAN BLECKER, junior publisher of The Blade, convinced that "something is fishy," sends Morden to Riverview to learn all he can about Cathay.

Mrs. CATHAY calls on Blecker and takes him to the Palace hotel for a conference with her husband's lawyer, CHARLES FISHER. Fisher says Cathay will forest his grievance if The Blade publishes a retraction. Blecker agrees to do this.

Over the telephone next day KENNEY, city editor, learns that Morden has been murdered.

"I," said Blecker, "sent that boy to his death."

CHAPTER VII

There was no answer from Blecker, publisher of The Blade, but an abrupt, negative nod of the head. Kenney, the city editor, pressed the receiver support down into place, then raised it again.

"Miss West," he went on, "this is Dick Kenney. Will you get me Bill Osborne on the line right away? Yes, I'll hold the line. . . hello, Bill, this is Kenney. Nixon has just telephoned in from headquarters. He's picked up a radio call. The police have found a body out on the outskirts of town. Sanborn and I've already seen it. It's a subdivision that's gone sour. There are only a few houses out there. The police think the body is that of Charles Morden."

"Take Sam Lane with you. Go down to headquarters and get on the job. Contact the homicide squad. Tell them that Morden was working on an important matter and that we're going to move heaven and earth to get the thing cleaned up. You can pass the word around that The Blade is going to expect results. You and I'll give you a line on the stuff Morden was working on. You pick up Fred Nixon and the three of you drop everything else to get this thing cleaned up. Understand?"

He nodded his head and dropped the receiver back into place, turned a set, grim face toward Blecker.

"Poor devil," he said. Blecker made a flat, pounded it slowly on the desk.

"I," he said slowly, "sent that boy to his death. I didn't know it, and he didn't know it, but that's what it amounted to. Poor devil! Just a newspaper man working on a case. He found out something and they rubbed him out."

"Can we get any clues from what he was working on?" Kenney asked. "The body was found 20 minutes ago. He'd been dead 24 hours. The back of his head was smashed. He'd been taken out there and dumped."

"He telephoned yesterday," Blecker said, "that he was working on a live lead. He had to play around with some woman to cultivate it. He didn't mention names. You go ahead and handle this thing, Kenney. Put as many men on the job as are necessary. Morden was one of our boys. He was bumped off. We're going to avenge his murder. More than that, it's an insult to the paper. We're going to clean this thing up. If we have to move heaven and earth, I'm going to see Sidney Griff, the criminologist."

"Kenney whistled. "There's more to this case," Blecker went on, "than appears on the surface."

"Of course there is," Kenney said. "You know what it is and so do I. Morden was getting dope on Frank Cathay."

"But," Blecker pointed out, "we made our peace with Cathay. The libel suit was called off."

"That doesn't mean that Morden had to forget what he'd found out, does it?" Kenney asked impatiently.

"Morden found out something," Cathay killed him to keep it quiet."

Blecker shook his head slowly. "Men are killed, Kenney," he said, "for gain, for vengeance, for fear, for jealousy. We can't figure where there was any revenge, gain or jealousy. Therefore, we jump at the conclusion it's fear and immediately figure Cathay was mixed up in it. But Cathay is a prominent citizen. There are any skeletons in his closet they'd be buried so deeply a casual investigation wouldn't have disclosed them in three days."

"Well," Kenney remarked, "Griff can tell us more about it. He's got the best criminologist in the country to-day. When you're talking with him, try and get some information out of him about a man by the name of Thomas Decker. Decker was a witness to the murder of Edward Shilling, a private detective. Philip Lannison—the gangster they call 'Cincinnati Red'—is held under arrest. The story goes that Decker was frightened because he was a witness. He went to Griff and Griff has buried him somewhere. He says he'll produce Decker at the time of trial, but that's all he'll say. There's a story in it if we could get Griff to talk."

"He won't," Blecker said. "There's no harm in trying," Kenney insisted. "If you work on this Morden case with him you'll get chummy with him. Remember to ask him about Decker. In the meantime I'm going to work and dig out some more facts."

He left the room with quick, impatient strides.

Dan Blecker, seated at his desk, got Elmer West on the telephone and said, "Get me Sidney Griff, the criminologist. Tell him that I want to see him upon a matter of major importance. I probably won't have at the time necessary to make a presentation of the case until after dinner to-night. I'd like to see him this evening."

Blecker sat perfectly motionless. His body seemed relaxed. His attitude might have been mistaken for one of calm meditation upon some peaceful subject.

The telephone rang. Blecker snapped the receiver from its rest and heard Elmer West say, "Mr. Griff will see you at 8:30 to-night if that is convenient."

"Quick," Blecker said. "Now get me the editor of The Riverview Chronicle, in Riverview. Rush the call."

He dropped the receiver back into position but held his hand on it and when, within a matter of a minute and a half, the telephone rang, he snatched the receiver to his ear with a quick motion.

"Hello," he said, "is this Beckley of The Riverview Chronicle? This is Dan Blecker, of The Blade. We sent a man up to look over your clippings on Frank B. Cathay. A chap named Morden. Did you give him any information?"

Blecker listened for a short time, then nodded his head.

"Now," he said, "I want you to do something for me. There may be a big story in it. I want you to find out for me where Frank B. Cathay was yesterday afternoon. In the morning if possible, but in the afternoon for certain. I want to know every move he made. You can go to any necessary expense and send me a bill for it. He was in the city, was he not? Check that, will you? Find out about the doctor. See if you can approach the nurse. They probably have two or three. Get all the information you can and telephone it in just as quickly as you can. That may be a matter of major importance. I'm calling on you because I know where you stand on the city election. I'm just asking you to extend me a courtesy which we have extended you in times past."

"You call me back just as soon as you find out. If I'm not here you can leave any information with Elmer West, my secretary."

Blecker dropped the receiver back into position, left his private office and pounded through the outer office with swift, nervous strides. He turned to the clerk of the corridor, walked down a long, musty passageway, with a stock room occupying the space on the left, a photographer's room with a series of dark rooms on the right. He passed a room from which came the clack of a typewriter, and a room where a man in a white coat, pushing his way into Dick Kenney's private office, telephoned Beckley of The Riverview Chronicle, he said, "for a report on Cathay. He tells me that Cathay was taken very suddenly and seriously ill yesterday morning and has been in bed ever since. I told him to verify it. Illness is something that can be faked very easily. We can't even be certain of the physician. Cathay is a prominent man but we can probably find out something from the nurses. Beckley is working on it."

"The police have found a body. They think it's that of Charles Morden."

"You think Cathay and Morden had a conference somewhere?" asked Kenney.

"I'm not thinking anything just yet," Blecker told him. "I'm getting facts. I have an appointment for 8:30 to-night with Sidney Griff. What have you found out from headquarters? Anything?"

"It's Morden all right," Kenney said grimly. "They can't tell the exact time of death yet, but it was some time yesterday afternoon, probably the early part of the afternoon. He was found out in the abandoned subdivision during the night, probably around 3 or 4 o'clock this morning. No one knows anything about how he got there."

The telephone on Kenney's desk shrilled into sound. Kenney frowned and pulled the receiver to his ear.

"Kenney speaking," he said mechanically, then added to Blecker, "It's for you," he said.

Blecker took the receiver, said "Hello, this is Blecker," and then nodded to Kenney.

"This is long distance," he said. "Riverview calling. They're coming on now. . . Hello, Beckley. . . yes. . . you're certain. . . there's no chance of a mistake. . . I see. . . okay. Thanks ever so much. It makes a good story for you at that end anyway. Huh. . . yes, we'll run something on it down here. Telephone us a complete report. I presume there'll be quite a scandal in Riverview. All right, if you'll send us in the story we'll give it a good play. Get all the facts and telephone in as soon as you get them. Within an hour if possible. You can get us the facts and we'll put a rewrite man on it."

He handed the telephone back to Kenney. Kenney replaced the receiver, dropped the telephone into position on the desk, and raised his eyebrows at Blecker.

"What did you find out?" he asked. (To Be Continued.)

Dan Blecker visits Sidney Griff, the famous criminologist, in the next instalment.

CHARGE OF FRAUD

TRAVELLER'S PASS WHICH WAS RETAINED

A traveller's certificate, worth approximately $200 in Hongkong currency, issued by the Government of the Netherlands, formed the subject of a charge against Lam Sau-man, a boarding-house keeper of No. 81 Connaught Road Central, before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Central Magistracy yesterday afternoon.

Defendant, with whom the certificate had been deposited by the complainant, Tanng Ki-hung, was alleged to have uttered a document purported to be the said certificate. Detective Inspector J. Murphy appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. R. H. Coles of Messrs. Hall, Tor and Co. was for the defence.

Murphy said that the certificate was known as an admission card or travelling certificate issued by the Government of the Netherlands. Persons in possession of this could leave Sumatra and any part of the Dutch colonies and return again. The object of the registration was to exclude Chinese from going into Dutch territory without the necessary pass.

The prosecution in this case alleged that the document was false in that it did not bear the photograph of the complainant which was on the genuine pass. The document (exhibited in Court) expired some time last year and was therefore useless to anybody.

Came From Sumatra. The complainant had lived in Sumatra, in a place called Dell, for the past five years. His brother worked in Singapore. Both came to Hongkong in February and stayed at the defendant's boarding house, Connaught Road Central. They went to the country and later came back with a view to returning to their respective places of abode. The complainant found he did not have enough money to return to Sumatra and went again to the country to obtain the necessary funds.

On his return to Hongkong he asked for the return of the certificate. On one excuse and another, defendant put him off day after day. Finally a certificate, shown in Court, was handed to him by the defendant.

At a meeting of the Hoklo Guild, it was urged that the defendant should pay compensation to the complainant, but the latter refused to accept this course. Inspector Murphy added that Sergeant Moran, Police Photographer, would testify that the fingerprint on the document, produced in Court, was not the complainant's.

Evidence was then taken, and the hearing was adjourned.

LOCAL WEDDING

PRETTY CEREMONY AT ST. ANDREW'S

Sergeant Charles Edward Allen and Miss Elizabeth Patta were married yesterday afternoon at the St. Andrew's Church, the Rev. J. R. Higgs officiating at the ceremony.

The bride, who hails from Great Barrington, Oxford, arrived in the Colony last week by H. M. T. Dorsetshire.

Entering the church on the arm of Mr. Guy E. Stevens, who gave her away, the bride looked charming in a yellow and orange flowered georgette gown set off with a pink picture hat. She carried a sheaf of langlest-tinted gladioli.

Attending the bride as Matron of Honour, was Mrs. G. F. Stevens who wore a pink and white flowered georgette dress, a black straw hat and carried a sheaf of pink gladioli.

Staff Sergeant Stephen Y. Clarke undertook the duties of best man. Mr. Rupert Baldwin played appropriate music on the organ.

Among those present at the wedding ceremony were Col. E. R. McPherson, O.B.E., Captain Temple Morris, M.C., and Mrs. Temple Morris, Captain H. B. Grasswell, Lt. L. W. Hiddle, At. S.M.A.V. Sanders and Mrs. Sanders, Staff Sergeant and Mrs. C. Flood, Sergeant and Mrs. Small, Sub-Cond. G. W. Bunt, Staff Sergeant E. J. Dyer, Sergeant and Mrs. W. Cubitt and Sergeant S. Morris.

After the ceremony, a reception was held at the Kowloon Hotel where the many friends of the happy couple gathered to toast to their future happiness. A dinner was given later in the evening at the Gloucester Hotel.

WATER RESTRICTION

HONGKONG SUPPLY REDUCED TO 15 HOURS DAILY

With the rainy season now practically over, the Hongkong Water Authorities have decided to impose restrictions on the supply. Only the island will be affected by the new order, which begins tomorrow.

Supply will be restricted to fifteen hours a day, from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m., effective for all districts in Hongkong. Kowloon will continue to have a 24-hour supply.

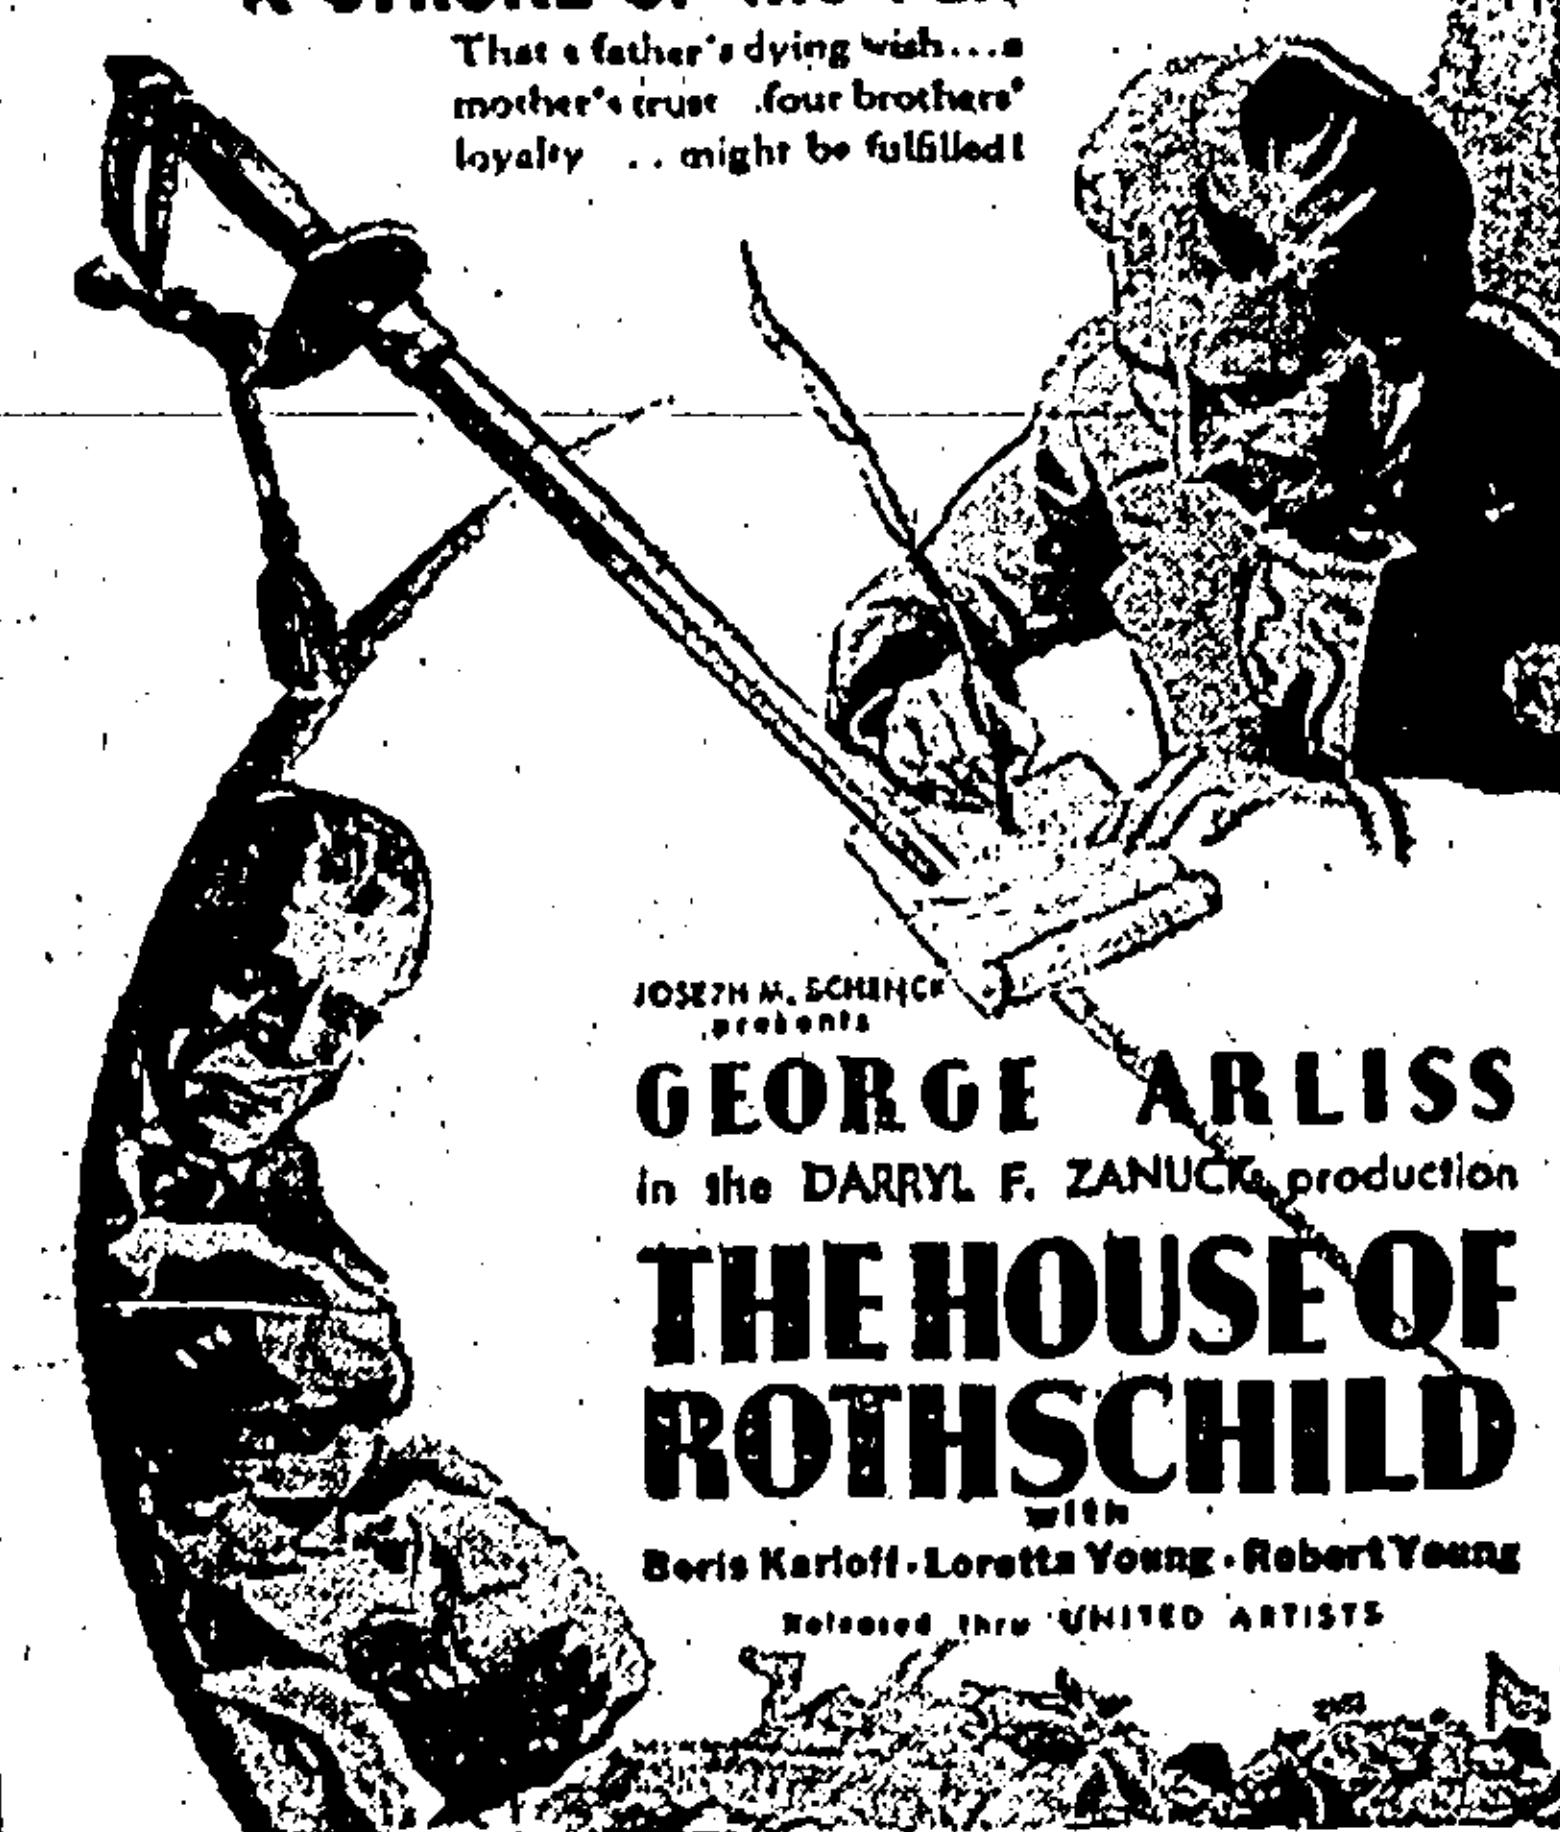

The island has enjoyed a continuous supply since June 23, almost immediately after the heavy rainfall of the previous weeks. In the water returns issued last week, however, the storage in the island reservoirs had shown a considerable decrease. Most of the reservoirs are now well below overflow.

LUCKY COLONIAL OFFICIALS

FREQUENT LEAVE PROPOSED

OPPORTUNITY TO
TRAVEL BY AIR

RECOMMENDATIONS OF COMMITTEE

London, Nov. 13.
Recommendations which may affect the leave of Colonial servants in Hongkong, were made public to-day.

The recommendations were contained in a report of a Committee, presided over by the Earl of Plymouth, and which was appointed in 1932 by Sir Philip Cunliffe-Lister, Secretary of State for the Colonies. This Committee has been considering the questions of leave and passage as they apply to the Colonial service.

The Committee recommends, inter alia that in the case of senior officers the length of tour shall be from two to three years, and the leave allowance five days in each month of each year, and that in the case of junior officials the length of tour shall be from three to four years with four days per month leave allowance.

All leave allowance will be exclusive of time taken in voyages. It is proposed that leave shall be granted on a basis of full salary. It is further recommended that if an officer travels by air, the Government should pay his full fare, and also that of his wife if she accompanies him, and the officer should be granted an extension of leave equal to half the difference between the time taken on the air journey and the standard period for a sea voyage.—Reuter.

STEEP CLIMB TO RECOVERY

HINTS OF PROGRESS IN AMERICA

Washington, Nov. 13.
There are two indications that President Roosevelt believes the national recovery has reached a point at which private lending agencies can resume their normal functions.

First, the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, which is a Government agency, has closed its doors against any new applications, seeking further funds from Congress. President Roosevelt recently assured the American Bankers' Association that the Government would withdraw from the money-lending field as soon as private business had demonstrated that it was capable of functioning in the normal way.—Reuter.

STOP PRESS

His Excellency the Governor has appointed a Committee, consisting of the Hon. the Secretary for Chinese Affairs (Chairman), the Hon. the Director of Medical and Sanitary Services, Mr. M. K. Lo and Mr. Li Chur-chi to enquire into the incidence of leprosy in this Colony and to suggest methods for dealing with leprosy found in the Colony.

Woodland, Cal. Nov. 13.
The second trial of Judson Doke, Great War veteran and confessed slayer of Lamar Hollingshead, university student and poet, is to take place on December 4, it was announced to-day. The jury failed to agree at the first trial.

Doke shot Hollingshead after he had discovered what he considered positive proof of intimacies between the poet and Mrs. Helen Louise Doke, pretty young wife of the ex-soldier.—United Press.

The unwritten law is to be pleaded in the case in which Judson C. Doke is charged with the murder of Lamar Hollingshead, California poet, suitor of the former's wife, Helen Louise Doke, who is seen above.

BRITISH PREMIER'S SOLEMN VOW

(SPECIAL TO "TELEGRAPH")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, Nov. 14, 8.49 a.m.)

Washington, Nov. 13.

SIMULTANEOUSLY, IN ENGLAND AND AMERICA, MR. RAMSAY MACDONALD AND MR. CORDELL HULL RESPECTIVELY ANNOUNCED THAT THEIR GOVERNMENTS WERE PURSUING A COURSE WHICH, IT WAS HOPED, WOULD MAKE POSSIBLE THE COMPLETE CONTROL OF INTERNATIONAL ARMS MANUFACTURE AND TRAFFIC IN MUNITIONS. BUT, AT THE SAME TIME, AMERICAN SPOKESMEN INTIMATED THAT THE UNITED STATES, FEARING THE COLLAPSE OF NAVAL CONVERSATIONS, HAD IN MIND A FORMIDABLE WARSHIP BUILDING PLAN.

The States Department has tacitly admitted that the United States has practically abandoned any hope of an immediate general disarmament agreement. Mr. Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, said to-day that the United States was working for an immediate international agreement for the control of manufacture and traffic in arms and munitions.

Mr. Hull added the effort would be pushed without waiting for any general disarmament agreement. Mr. Hugh Wilson, American delegate to the Disarmament Conference, had already sounded Mr. Matsudaira, the Japanese diplomat, on Japan's attitude in the matter.—United Press.

CLEARING THE WAY.

(Special to "Telegraph")

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, November 13, 5.35 a.m.)

The American naval programme for the immediate future is assuming a shape which is regarded as doubly important due to the indications that the international naval agreements may collapse.

The proposal of Congressman Vinson for the building of two giant dirigibles is one feature of the new move towards higher efficiency in naval and air armament. Then, too, the Budget Bureau is reported to have approved of expenditure of necessary money for the building of 24 warships in 1935, under the Vinson programme.

High naval officers, finally, declare they have little faith in pocket battleships, saying they are not able to withstand the attacks of the huge capital ships. It is indicated, therefore, that the United States will build heavy vessels if she undertakes a naval extension plan.—United Press.

HOPE ABANDONED.

Washington, Nov. 13.
The United States has abandoned hope for an immediate general disarmament agreement and Mr. Cordell Hull announced to-day that Mr. Hugh Wilson, delegate to the Disarmament Conference, had been asked to sound European and Asiatic powers as to whether they would become parties to the drafting of an arms traffic control agreement.—Reuter.

MACDONALD'S PLEDGE.

London, Nov. 13.

As he stood before the Cenotaph on November 11, he vowed Great Britain should be an instrument in making war a thing of the past, declared Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, when speaking in Southampton to-night.

The Government, he said, was zealously pursuing a policy of peace. He was working day and night to diminish the world's armaments, and would accept no defeat. With regard to the private manufacture of arms and armaments, there were thousands of unemployed in Britain, he said, because the Government had refused to allow the manufacture of war weapons for certain purposes.

"Yet when we urged an embargo on arms to Japan and China during the Manchukuo troubles, other countries would not agree to it," the Prime Minister recalled.

"The way to handle this armaments manufacturing business is to extend the licensing system and make it international. We are going to try to get that done at Geneva as soon as possible," he added.—Reuter.

"It is impertinent, scandalous and improper," declared Mr. Andrew Mellon, American financier and multi-millionaire, when replying to a claim of the Internal Revenue Bureau for about U.S.$2,000,000 additional income tax, allegedly due from him for the year 1931.

In his reply to the Bureau's charges, Mr. Mellon denied he owed more money to the Government and contended that his 1931 income tax report was properly prepared. Mr. Mellon recently faced a federal court on similar charges for evasion of income tax returns for another period, and paid a large sum to the Treasury.—Reuter.

An X-ray examination indicates that no operation is necessary and the Prime Minister's pains are much less acute.—Reuter.

London, Nov. 13.
"It is not an act of grand motherly legislation," said Lady Astor, in the House of Commons to-day, in an accusation that the Lotteries Bill was a piece of "kill joy" legislation.

There was no allusion on the part of the Government to prevent an honest man or woman having "a bob" on a horse or a greyhound, said the Home Secretary.

The Bill was intended as a deterrent to those people who made a business of exploiting weaknesses to rob the poor.

Mr. Winston Churchill described the Bill as "disrespectful, frivolous and futile".—Reuter Special.

THIRD READING.

London, Nov. 13.
The Lotteries Bill passed its third reading in the House of Commons to-day and despite some bitter attacks from various quarters, the vote was 206 to 38.

The closing stages of the debate were marked by a sparkling attack by Lady Astor upon Mr. Winston Churchill, who led the Opposition to the Bill. The House was kept rocking with laughter, in which Mr. Churchill good-naturedly joined.

"I am amazed to hear the honourable members' talk of grandmotherly legislation," Lady Astor exclaimed. "Unfortunately our grandmothers did not legislate because they had no vote. If they had the country would have been much better off than it is to-day."

At the Bill originated in the House of Lords, it will now return there with the House of Commons amendments.—Reuter.

FILMLAND NEWS

New Productions at Twickenham

CROMWELL FILM

Six super pictures to be produced at a total cost of approximately £20,000 are scheduled at the Twickenham Studios.

These films include two Twickenham Film Studios' productions, namely, "A 1 at Lloyd's," the spectacular history of the famous insurance house, and "Squibs," with Betty Balfour.

The four other films scheduled are to be made by Julius Hagen's other company, Real Art Productions, namely, "The Morals of Marcus," from W. J. Locke's book, starring Lupu Velaz; "Vintage Wine," the play now running at Daly's Theatre, London, with Seymour Hicks; "The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes," with Arthur Wontner as Sherlock; and the film based on the life of "Oliver Cromwell," from the story by Richard Fisher.

The first to go into production is "The Morals of Marcus," and "Vintage Wine" is also scheduled for early production. For this film Julius Hagen is negotiating for Julia Neilson and another West End actress.

The new "Squibs" film will be a singing and talking picture in which Betty Balfour will be co-starred with Gordon Barker. Stanley Holloway also has an important comedy role.

"The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes" will be adapted from "The Valley of Fear," with Arthur Wontner as Sherlock Holmes; Ian Fleming will play Dr. Watson.

The story of "A 1 at Lloyd's" has been written by Denison Clift, the American film director and author, and is based on the history of the famous insurance house of the South Sea Bubble and the panic of 1720 will be shown in the film, which will also show the effects of the disaster to the Smyrna Fleet with the loss of one hundred vessels in Lagos Bay.

Again history will play a part in this programme with the production of "Oliver Cromwell." Julius is negotiating with two prominent actors on the West End stage to play the vital roles of Oliver Cromwell and Charles I.

Julius Hagen has also made arrangements for the American lease of these pictures.

MAE WEST FOR ENGLAND.

Mae West is to make a personal tour of Britain in a short revue. Arrangements have been made for her to visit London, Newcastle, Manchester, Glasgow, Leeds, and Liverpool, and to appear personally in a revue which she herself has written.

Francis Mangan, who produces all the big stage shows for the Paramount Theatres throughout the country, has returned from the United States able to announce that he has managed to dispel Mae West's dread of the prospect of a long sea voyage, and that she has agreed to make her first appearance in London on Boxing Day, provided the "shootings" of her latest film is finished in time.

She will stay in London about a fortnight, and then start her flying tour of the provinces.

SUNDAY FILMS.

Fewer than a hundred people were present at the first Sunday cinema show which was held in Sheffield. It was arranged by the Sheffield Sunday School Union, and held in the Montgomery Hall, which has accommodation for about 750 people. The performance started at 8.15.

The proposal to show Sunday films has aroused opposition from cinema exhibitors in Sheffield, who have contended that these shows are likely to make it necessary for them to open their cinemas on Sundays, a course which they have

The film shown was a silent one, "Abraham Lincoln—Christian and Patriot." It was preceded by three hymns, a prayer, Scripture reading, and an address.

Marilyn Knowlden, the child actress, who had a small part in "Little Women," has been selected for a role in the forthcoming Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, "David Copperfield."

She will play the role of the child Agnes Wickfield, David Copperfield's foster sister, whom in adult life he recognises as his real love.

Marilyn Knowlden, aged seven, joins a cast that includes Frank Lawton, Lionel Barrymore, Edna May Oliver, Lewis Stone, Maureen O'Sullivan, Elizabeth Allan, Roland Young, Madge Evans, Hugh Williams, Herbert Mundin, Jean Cadell, and others.

CLEVER FORGER

CAUGHT BEFORE
HE STARTED

SPLITTING TEN
SHILLING NOTES

What prosecuting counsel described as a very thorough plant for making ten-shilling notes was mentioned at the Old Bailey, London, recently.

Leonard Henry Gaul (24), a seaman, pleaded guilty to engraving words and letters on a copper plate resembling those of a ten-shilling Bank of England note, without lawful authority, and possessing sixteen pieces of paper on which were words peculiar to those used in Bank of England notes.

Mr. Christmas Humphreys, prosecuting, said that at Gaul's home at Deptford the police found a ten-shilling note which had been split so that the back and front were separate. There was a head of Britannia, obviously about to be used for a watermark, a large number of copper plates with impressions on them, a copper plate with the process of being engraved, and pieces of paper bearing rough impressions of a ten-shilling note. There were also rolls, frames, and photographic apparatus, making the early stages of a very complete plant for forging notes.

A large photograph of the various tools and materials, taken for the instruction of police officers, was shown to the Common Sergeant, Mr. Cecil Whiteley, K.C.

The Common Sergeant recalled that he prosecuted in the first case of Treasury note forgeries during the war. He referred to the split ten-shilling note and remarked, "It is amazing how it is done."

Gaul was reported to be a man of good character.

Detective Inspector Spash said that although there were some forged ten-shilling notes in circulation, he did not contradict Gaul's statement that he had not printed any.

Gaul was sentenced to three years' penal servitude.

LEGACY'S EFFECT
ON TEETOTALER

A teetotaler who, upon being left a legacy, "drank himself insane" within a month, appeared at Liverpool Police Court, recently, accused of attempted suicide. He was Joseph M'Arde (60), commercial traveller, of Elizabeth Street, Liverpool.

It was stated that his hand was cut off and his right ear mangled when he threw himself under a railway train.

"I had been teetotal for three or four years before I was left the money," M'Arde told the Magistrate. "Then I drank beer and wine for three or four weeks and was suffering from delusions when I went under the train."

Dr. J. H. Murdoch, medical officer at Liverpool Prison, said M'Arde had been insane through the alcohol when he was admitted to hospital. Treatment had brought his mind back to normal.

M'Arde was bound over on the condition that the remainder of his legacy should be left in the control of his sister, who undertook to prevent him taking alcohol.

ARLISS WANTS
VILLAIN'S ROLEBUT ONE WITH SENSE OF HUMOUR

Mr. George Arliss has concluded his work in his first British talking picture, "The Iron Duke," at the Gaumont-British studios at Shepherd's Bush, W., and left for Hollywood early in November to complete his existing contract with Twentieth Century Pictures, for whom he played in "The House of Rothschild."

"With 'The House of Rothschild,' 'The Iron Duke,' and 'Cardinal Richelieu,' I shall have made three historical films in succession. Therefore I would like the next film in which I appear in London to be taken from a modern subject," said Mr. Arliss.

"I think I would like to play a villain. Villains are very interesting, especially villains with a sense of humour."

"I chose the Duke of Wellington ('The Iron Duke') because I thought it fitting that the central character of the first talking picture in which I played in London should be a great Englishman."

"I have seriously considered Samuel Pepys for another picture, not in his role as a gossip, but in his more important aspect as the champion of the British Navy at a most critical period in its history."

"I cannot," continued Mr. Arliss, "say anything about 'The Iron Duke' as I shall be away from London before the first night at the 'Tivoli' on November 20. In any case, I have only once attended a presentation of one of my own films, and

VILLAGE
WITHOUT
SEX APPEALSWAINS HUNT
FAR AFIELD"WHY?" ASKS
RECTOR

When the young men of Ibsstock, this old-world village a few miles from Leicester, think of marriage, the last place in which they seem to look for a bride is Ibsstock itself.

They reserve their attentions for the beauties of Kegworth. They look for their brides in Bottesford or Blanton St. Giles, or cast inviting glances at the darlings in Drayton or Danton-Basset. They go wooing in Wilbeats or courting in Claybrooke.

Never in Ibsstock would they dream of finding a wife. The problem has raised a minor uproar in Ibsstock, and the village to-day is the centre of controversy.

It began when the rector, the Rev. M. R. Newbery, wrote in his parish magazine:

"There seems to be something wrong with Ibsstock. Out of the last nine banns put in at church, in seven cases the bridegroom has sought his bride elsewhere."

"Ibsstock girls, are you not ashamed of yourselves, or is the man to blame?"

"Is there no loveliness in Ibsstock? Have the village maidens no S. A.?" he was asked.

"S. A.?" wondered Mr. Newbery. "Oh, sex appeal. Ibsstock should boast of its girls, but the young men apparently do not do so. It is quite true, however, that the girls marry few of the local men. Perhaps it may be the man's fault."

And what have the girls to say for themselves?

Mrs. Beardsall, a member of the Church Council, summed it up.

"It cannot be the girls' fault, whatever may be said about it. Most of them work in Leicester, and dress as well as any city girl. If they do not marry the village lads, it is because they have so many other opportunities. 'Mr. Newbery's figures are no doubt correct, but his conclusions are wrong.'" department of radio-therapy, and a second of £70,000 to enable the Board to proceed with the final section of the new hospital.

Mr. Meyerstein mentioned that the previous day was his birthday, and said that he proposed to give himself a present. There was, he said, a poster outside the hospital which he desired to possess. That poster showed what was still needed to complete the new hospital, and the price upon it was £85,675. With the consent of Prince Arthur and the Board he would give them a cheque for that amount, and have the poster taken down for it to become his property.

The meeting consented, and the reconstruction fund of the hospital became closed.

The secretary of the hospital later stated that the effort which had just been completed was believed to be the greatest ever made by an individual hospital.

LETTER FROM LONDON
WATERLOO BRIDGE
DESIGN
FLATS SPRING UP
LIKE MUSHROOMS

London, Oct. 16. I mentioned the other week that Sir Giles Scott's design for the new Waterloo Bridge would probably be accepted, and the Highways Committee has now approved his plans. Mr. G. R. Strauss, the chairman of the committee said that the new design was of a type different from any that had previously been considered.

"I think it will be generally agreed that the design is a pleasing one," he said. "It is on slender lines than the one first proposed and will consist of five wide, slender arches. One of the arches will span the Embankment on the northern side, and river users are satisfied with the type of bridge proposed. We expect that this design will result in a saving of £100,000."

"The Committee's recommendation will come before the council in due course."

A description of the bridge issued yesterday said: "The design is for a bridge with five equal arches. This new design is a conception whose great appeal lies in its grace and straightforward simplicity, with five wide arches springing from shore to shore, the first stretching right over the Embankment out into the river. High relatively flat, arches which seem to skim the tops of the piers give a light and delicate effect to the bridge, which can claim a special aesthetic quality of its own. From a navigational point of view the Port of London Authority and the river-users are satisfied with a bridge of the type proposed which makes available the working waterway of the river in a highly favourable manner. The committee believe that the bridge will blend harmoniously with both the old and the new in its surroundings. Sir Giles Scott has retained the twin-arch effect which gave an individual character to his previous design and the materials of construction proposed are the same being granite-faced concrete for the piers, reinforced concrete spans, and Portland stone-facing."

CRAZE FOR FLATS. No one can go about London without wondering when and where the craze for flats will end. In all directions new blocks of flats are going up as fast as the work can be done, and they seem to vie with each other to have the greatest number of modern improvements to offer the prospective tenants. Houses are coming down everywhere and pleasant gardens disappear to become in time the foundations for new flats. This must be one of the most remarkable of modern developments and no sensible business men are behind all this building they evidently believe that the flat as a home has come to stay.

Two reasons are given for this. One is that people nowadays spend money in a car and are able to be away a good deal, where once they spent more time in their own houses and gardens, and another is the difficulty of getting enough good servants for the larger house. The reason, however, that is still more frequently given for preferring a flat to a house is the facility with which the former can be locked up and left for indefinite periods. All it is necessary to do is to turn the key in the lock and give your address to the hall porter.

WISH HOUSE OCCUPANTS. When the Bush House western wing, on which work is now beginning, was acquired by the Office of Works a few months ago there was some query as to which Government department was to be housed there. Then it was announced that the whole block was to be used for an extension of Somerset House. Later it was reported that the Air Ministry was putting in strong claims for part of the space. It is now understood that these claims have been withdrawn.

TRADE MARK CASE

FINE AND PAYMENT OF COSTS

The case in which Tong So, a broker of the Hop Kee Firm of 51, Winslow Street, ground floor, was charged with a breach of the Trade Mark Ordinance, was concluded before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning. Defendant was fined $500 and was ordered to pay $150 costs.

Defendant was charged with the possession, at 51, Winslow Street, ground floor, and 23, Wah Fung Street, ground floor, of face powder, labels, wrappers and boxes to which a false trade mark, which resembled trade mark No. 6 of 1930, had been applied. At a previous hearing the charge had been amended by the exclusion of the latter address, as no evidence was brought against accused in regard to that charge.

Mr. G. K. Hall Brutton, of Messrs. Hall Brutton and Company, represented the complainant, Wong Shui, manager of the Sam Fung Firm, while Mr. J. B. Prentiss, of Messrs. Hastings and Company, appeared for the defendant.

His Worship, in convicting the defendant, said he did not think defendant acted innocently. In the defendant's evidence he admitted that the boxes had been found on a window sill. The window was usually kept open, and people were continually passing to and fro and had easy access to the place. Defendant denied having known that the boxes were there, but in the same breath said that the boxes were with the remainder of the boxes which he had been ordered to destroy, when he was convicted of a similar offence last year.

The police were instructed by His Worship to hold the boxes which had been found at 23, Wah Fung Street, pending proceedings against Tong So, who had admitted that he was the tenant of that.

ICE COMPANY'S MEETINGCOOL SUMMER
DETRIMENTAL

An increase in sales, despite an unusually cool summer, was reported by the Chairman (Mr. T. E. Pearce) of the Hongkong and Canton Ice Manufacturing Co., Ltd., at the thirteenth ordinary yearly meeting of shareholders held at 11 a.m. to-day at the offices of the General Managers at No. 2 Lower Albert Road.

There were present Messrs. T. E. Pearce, S. H. Dodwell, A. B. Stewart and Ho Kom-long (Directors); A. Stevenson (Manager); G. Milne (Acting Secretary); and W. W. Mackenzie, L. Weill, Chan Nal-pan and Lo Kul-Wing (shareholders).

CHAIRMAN'S SPEECH

The Chairman said:—Gentlemen,—Before I proceed with the ordinary business of the meeting I wish to make special reference to the death of the late Mr. J. P. Warren. Mr. Warren served on the Board for a number of years and was Chairman of the Company in the year 1929-1930. Mr. Warren had the Company's best interest at heart and his views were at all times much appreciated. I take this opportunity, therefore, of putting on record our deep regret at this gentleman's demise.

The report and accounts having been in your hands for some days, I will, with your consent, take them as read and will only briefly refer in the course of my remarks to such items as call for comment. I am glad to be able to report that we have had a more successful year than last, despite the fact that the unusually cool summer experienced this year was detrimental to the sale of our product. It may be of interest to you to know that over the course of the year under review sales show an increase over last year of approximately 15½ per cent. Sales for the months from April to July, however, were noticeably down as compared to previous years, due to the reason I have just given. It is only reasonable to assume, therefore, that had we not had an abnormally cool summer, results would have been even better than are shown by our accounts.

Turning to the accounts, you will note that the profit on Working Account is $25,961.88 as compared with $21,905.69 last year. This is due to certain economies which have been effected, particularly under the heading of salaries. You will observe that a total sum of $13,571.40 has been charged against depreciation in respect of machinery and ice stores, buildings, furniture and fixtures. Your Directors are of the opinion that depreciation on this scale is necessary.

The plant, I am pleased to be able to say, although installed in 1921, is still in good condition and continues to operate satisfactorily, while the property is in a good state of repair.

DIRECTORS' REMUNERATION

Your Directors have again agreed to their fees being halved, as will be seen from the entry of $1,500 in the Profit & Loss Account, and the only remuneration paid to the General Managers is the commission of $1,180.65, also as shown in the Profit & Loss Account. After allowing for the depreciation mentioned the net profit for the year is $7,140.04, to which was to be added the sum of $6,892.69 brought forward from last year's account, making a balance for allocation of $14,032.73. It is proposed to deal with this sum as follows:—To pay a dividend of 15 cents per share on 40,000 shares, absorbing $6,000; to carry forward $8,032.73. I hope that this proposed allocation will meet with your approval.

I now propose that the report and accounts as presented be adopted. When this has been decided, I shall be pleased to answer to the best of my ability any questions which Shareholders may wish to ask.

There were no questions; and the report and accounts, after being seconded by Mr. W. W. Mackenzie, were adopted unanimously.

Mr. L. Weill proposed that Messrs. A. B. Stewart and Lau Yick-cheuk be re-elected Directors.

Seconded by Mr. Chan Nal-pan, this was carried.

Messrs. Percy Smith, Seth & Fleming were reappointed auditors at a remuneration of $350, on the proposition of Mr. S. H. Dodwell, seconded by Mr. A. B. Stewart.

This concluded the business of the meeting.

PLANNING CAMPAIGN

They will carry sufficient fuel for a non-stop flight of 2,900 miles and propose to fly via the Sahara Desert and Nigeria down the West Coast of Africa.—British Wireless.

PRISON FOR PARSEE

Deacons, Hongkong. Mr. Herbert Phillips, H.B.M. Consul-General, occupied a seat on the bench.

Altogether there were three charges, involving sums of $8,000, $7,000 and $4,500, all in Hongkong currency.

Mr. Armstrong, in pleading for leniency, stated that accused had been persuaded to speculate in exchange and had lost money, and finally borrowed money from his employers which he had every intention of paying back. It was accused's first offence.

The Judge, in passing sentence, said accused had occupied a position of great trust and had let down not only his employers but also the esteemed local Parsee community, to which he belonged. The fraud had extended over a considerable period.

Sentence of two years' hard labour on each count, to run concurrently, was passed, and the Judge expressed the hope that when accused was released he would make amends for the harm he had done.

BETTER WEATHER?

The anticyclone remains over the Yangtze Valley and has increased in intensity. The typhoon is approaching the Visayas on a W.N.W. track in the vicinity of Calbayog. Local forecast:—N.E. winds, fresh; cloudy with drizzle or mist, probably improving later.

HITLER ENVOY'S CALL

London, Nov. 13. Herr Von Ribbentrop, President Hitler's adviser on subjects relating to disarmament, made a courtesy call on Sir John Simon at the Foreign Office to-day.—British Wireless.

The suspicions of an Indian policeman, Adullah Khan, were aroused by the actions of Wong Sum, a 26-year-old travelling trader, yesterday at the railway embankment off Prince Edward Road. The constable later arrested the man, who, on the way to the Kowloon City Police Station, offered the constable a bribe of 75 cents Hongkong money, and 20 cents Canton money. On appearing before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, charged with attempting to bribe a police officer, the defendant was fined $25 with the alternative of one month's imprisonment. His Worship ordered the money to be put in the Poor Box.

JAPAN'S TRADE COMPETITION

The industrial competition which Japan is offering to other countries is still the subject of worldwide attention. It will be of interest, therefore, to take notice of the Japanese view of the problem and more particularly of the effects of increased Japanese expansion on the industrial and social standards of other countries. This has been set forth at some length in a reply to figures quoted by the Director of the International Labour Office showing the marked rise in Japan's overseas trade from 1931 to 1933. The first point made is that to take the figures for 1931 is to create an erroneous impression of the situation, since that was an abnormal year. It is contended that as compared with 1929, Japanese exports last year showed a decrease of 14 per cent. in value, and, as compared with 1925, a decrease of 26 per cent. Moreover, the foreign trade of Japan in 1933 represented only 3.69 of world trade, whilst the increase in the nation's total trade between 1929 and 1933 did not amount to more than 0.23 per cent, and the increase in export trade to only 0.20 per cent. It is claimed that many countries notably France, Britain and Belgium, have increased their trade to a much greater extent than Japan. A point to be kept in mind, however, in taking trade values is the extent of the depreciation of the yen in terms of other currencies. One of the most interesting submissions made is that by her foreign trade, Japan is contributing to the industrial recovery of the countries with which she is trading. In support of this point, it is stated that with her scanty natural resources, Japan is compelled to buy most of her raw materials from abroad—38 per cent. of the iron, 40 per cent. of the wheat, and 100 per cent. of the cotton and wool which she requires. It is thus argued that should Japanese exports be suddenly checked and her imports correspondingly decrease, the people who will suffer most directly will be the manufacturers of the industrial nations of the West and the producers of raw materials the world over. These points are illuminating as showing how Japan views this big problem, especially also in view of the further contention that Japanese progress in recent years is due more to increased efficiency and technical advancement than to exploitation of the country's workers. None the less, it is beyond dispute that Japan has immensely expanded her overseas trade, and nothing is to be gained by efforts designed to show that the advance has not been very marked. News from all parts of the world show the facts to be other-

BANKERS BLUNDER

Commercial banks in the United States failed to grasp their opportunity; they failed to rally to the support of industry by extending loans, desiring a high degree of liquidation. Now, it appears, the Government will take unto itself the responsibility of extending credit to business, through the establishment of a central bank early in 1935. Everyone knows that there has been something radically wrong with the American banking system. Whether the Central Bank scheme will solve the whole problem remains to be seen. Already the Government has taken in hand much of the business that might ordinarily have been done by the banks, and a little more besides, lending freely in an effort to strengthen the industrial fabric of the nation, extend credit, employment and trade. The American administration is experimenting with this banking machinery and that its present operations will determine the policy of the future. In any event, the banks have been brought under closer scrutiny and there is certainly less likelihood of a repetition of the epidemic of failures which caused the panic through the years of depression. Something accomplished, something done!

BIDDING FOR TRADE

It is probably that Japan has got her teeth most firmly fixed in the trade bone for which the exporting nations are contending. In South America. Without the guidance of up-to-date figures, the present trend cannot be calculated, but there has been a slackening of world export business to South America generally. The one exception to the rule is Japan. According to one authority Japan has attained a position in some markets from which she will never be dislodged. What makes the Japanese position extraordinary is the fact that she is continually pouring through the open doors of the South American republics. Once established, they create a demand for Japanese goods. While Great Britain and the United States have had a major share of developing heavy industries in South America, and have got into the country on the ground floor, so to speak, they have perhaps neglected the host of less remunerative opportunities, and Japan has seized upon them.

DANGEROUS DRUGS

One trembles to think what might have happened to many civilised communities if the dangerous drug traffic had been allowed to develop unchecked after the War. New drugs have been discovered and new methods and opportunities of production developed which have added enormously to the difficulties of both national and international control. Fortunately the machinery which the League of Nations has established for dealing with the problem is of a flexible character and can be altered and adapted to meet an ever-changing situation. That is why new drugs Conventions have to be adopted at fairly frequent intervals and why there are, dealing with the matter, each of course responsible for one particular aspect of the problem. Two of the three League bodies dealing with the drug menace recently met. One of these is the Supervisory Body set up by the 1931 Convention for the Limitation of the Manufacture of Dangerous Drugs, which met at Geneva at the beginning of October. The other is the Permanent Central Opium Board which met on October 18.

COLLECTING STATISTICS

This Board collects the statistics from different Governments regarding the amounts of the various dangerous drugs which they require for medical and scientific purposes. This enables the legitimate traffic in dangerous drugs to be properly controlled. The statistics are also of course of vital importance to the Supervisory Body in its task of controlling manufacture. There is one other form of international control which sooner or later will have to be effected, and that is the control of the production of the raw materials. Already the League has discussed the matter but a great deal of preparatory work will have to be done before a conference can be called to deal with the problem. It was announced yesterday that China has gone far in controlling the narcotic traffic within her borders, and the efforts of the Government must call for world approval.

wise. Whilst there is something to be said for the argument that newly-industrialised peoples must be permitted to develop their trade, it is obvious that there is a danger in permitting the resulting international competition to lead to a lowering of the standard of living in the more advanced countries. The process of adjustment should be through levelling-up rather than by levelling-down, and this can only be done by the gradual abandonment of the lower standards.

LATEST ASSAULT ON BRITISH LIBERTY

D.N. PRITT, K.C., EXPLAINS
THE "MENACE" IN BRITAIN'S
NEW SEDITION BILL.

THE Sedition Bill has become notorious as an onslaught on the liberties of the subject. Attacks on it have come from every political quarter, and the Government has showed its hesitation by amending the original draft. But even in its present form the gravest objections remain, and since the Government threatens to pass it into law it is clear that they need restating.

These objections are, firstly, that the Bill would render criminal many legitimate and valuable human activities; and, secondly, that it introduces a highly vexatious right of search.

What are these activities which are to be penalised? After providing in Section 1 that it shall be an offence to try to seduce any member of the forces from his duty, the Bill proceeds to make it an offence to have documents in one's possession "with intent to commit" the offence of trying to seduce the troops from their duty.

Examination shows that this is far worse than it sounds for it is clear that any written argument addressed to the troops urging that killing or fighting is wrong, or that unarmed strikers protesting against intolerable conditions of labour should not be shot down, would constitute an offence.

The great evil of the Bill is that it not merely prevents these arguments being addressed to the troops, but also very effectively prevents them being addressed to anyone else. The only practical method nowadays of addressing arguments to the public is to print them; and, if one publishes printed matter, one is bound to contemplate that among one's readers there will certainly be some members of the forces.

Now, it is a well-known rule of law that one must be taken to contemplate the natural consequences of one's own acts; and it follows that nobody can safely print anything for general publication if it contains any argument that might weaken a soldier's allegiance.

It is clear that the result of the Bill would be to remove into the criminal classes all active writers in the Society of Friends and the various pacifist organisations.

The other main objection to the Bill, that relating to the power of search, is equally serious.

In many Continental countries the police have wide powers of entry into private houses to search for evidence of supposed offences; and it is well known that when such powers are freely used all real freedom of discussion tends to disappear and life becomes quite intolerable to many ordinary people, and above all to those citizens, valuable but sometimes unpopular, who are of "advanced" views.

It has long been one of the principles of English government that

police powers of entry and search should be jealously restricted, and the last serious efforts to widen such powers without justification were rejected in scathing language by Chief Justice Camden in 1785. Yet, in 1934, it is sought by this Bill to create wide powers of search, amounting to a very grave inroad into our civil liberties.

The Bill proposes that, to obtain the warrant, a police inspector must get two Justices of the peace to meet together (not in public, and in the absence of the parties involved), and must then tell them the facts which make it reasonable to suspect that someone (not necessarily the person whose house is to be searched) may have done some act made punishable by the Bill.

No more than that is needed to obtain the warrant.

Now let us see what powers it confers. It gives the inspector power to enter by force at any hour of the day or night during the following month any premises or place named in the warrant. Neither the premises, nor any person or thing on them, need be connected in any way with the suspected offence; all that is necessary is that the premises should be named in the warrant.

Once inside, the inspector and his officers may search without restriction the premises and everybody they can find there, whether thought to have any connection with the matter or not. And they may seize and take away with them anything which they "have reasonable grounds for suspecting" to amount to any evidence that an offence under the Act has been committed.

Here again the position is worse than appears at first sight; for, as the law stands at present anyone who is lawfully searching anyone's premises is entitled, if he has the good fortune to find anything that gives some evidence that anyone has committed any criminal offence whatsoever, to seize that thing. The result is that, once a search warrant is granted under this Bill, the police would be entitled to seize and take away from the premises and from the persons there anything seeming to indicate that any one of the innumerable criminal offences known to the law had been committed by anyone whatsoever.

Small wonder in the circumstances that, after much Government indignation had been displayed against the charge of attempting to introduce "General Warrants," the Attorney-General in the House of Commons let the reactionary cut out of the bag with the remark that the "Bill is to enable an answer to be given to any successor of Chief Justice Camden who asks: 'Where is the law which allows a general warrant to be issued?' If this Bill is passed we shall turn to it and say: 'This is the authority for the magistrate.'"

The Very Idea!

WHAT BOOTS IT?

By George

DEAR George,
I was much impressed by the House of Rothschild film during the week-end and I must say it is a lesson as to what can be done with a few dollars, chop them never so badly.

The rumour that George Arliss is in the Colony has been traced to a drunken friend of mine who saw a middle-aged man in the Gloucester Building about to pay his chits, with dignity.

Anyway I understand that the Hotel refused to accept dignity in payment—which explains why our account has been stopped.

I have had the good fortune to get a pre-view of the Janet Gaynor shoes which have been transported at great risk and expense from Hollywood, and find that they fit me exactly.

I take a size eight usually but a little razor paring will bring me down to three and get rid of a couple of corns as well.

Chinese shoe makers are anxious to get a copy of the shoes to flood the market with them and I am dreading the embarrassment of the management when a full house of women stand up to compare their shoes with Miss Gaynor's on the screen and find that she has discarded about 2,000 pairs of footwear in three styles.

By the way I see that Hag Keates of the Wheelers has cycled 1,405 miles. Can any reader tell me how this is possible considering the short roads we have here?

I see another friendly match was held during the week-end in which not a player was assaulted or sent off and the referee escaped practically intact. What is wrong with the competitive spirit in local sport to-day?

I must go now as I have just been reading the Pursuit of Health column and must run after my doctor.

Yours faithfully,
Aunt Emma.

CRIPPLED BY TERRIFIC SEAAMERICAN SHIP'S NARROW ESCAPERADIO CHATTER BLAMED

A wave "possibly 65 or 70 feet high" almost overwhelmed the tanker Larry Doherty, which, caught in a Pacific typhoon the night of Oct. 23, flashed an SOS, which caused much apprehension for the ship's safety. Capt. W. H. Wilder told the story of the ship's adventure when he reached Manila.

Still showing some of the effects of the battering she received, the Larry Doherty reached Manila Saturday morning. Temporary repairs were made at Guam, whence she was conveyed after the typhoon by the U. S. S. Gold Star, naval transport.

"We have no scientific means of measuring the height of the big wave that nearly finished us, but I'd say it was as high as our masts, and they are about 65 or 70 feet tall," Captain Wilder said.

The wall of water struck the main deck aft of the bridge. The steering gear was crippled and the wireless shortly went out of commission.

"I was on the bridge, 25 feet above the waterline, and I had to look up to see the top of the wave. I thought it was going to strike the bridge and it flashed in my mind that it was all up with us," said Capt. Wilder.

That the ship, bringing 6,330 tons of fuel oil from San Pedro, Calif., to Manila for use of the Asiatic fleet, survived at all was due largely to what Captain Wilder described as the heroism of the first mate, Charles A. Carlton.

With the steering gear crippled, it would be impossible to keep the ship headed into the mountainous waves and in the trough of the sea she would be overwhelmed and founder. Carlton then volunteered to try to reach the emergency steering gear on the after housing and Captain Wilder said he reluctantly gave his consent, fearing the mate would be swept overboard.

But after an eight-minute struggle through the wreckage of the after bridge walk, across the main deck, over which giant waves were crashing, the mate signalled with a flashlight that he had reached his goal and would steer from that position.

"From 10 p.m. Oct. 23 to 4 a.m. the next day the wind blew a minimum of 90 miles an hour and exceeded 100 miles in the squalls," he said. "From 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. the minimum was 75 miles an hour."

"We got in the path of the typhoon largely because we could not get weather reports from nearby ships indicating its probable course," he said. "The continual sending of some ships and stations makes the air out in this part of the world like a monkey cage."

The China Japan Trading Company, French Bank Building, was fined $25 by Mr. Schofield in the Central Police Court this morning on a summons instigated by the Import and Export Department for failing to make an importation declaration, within seven days, in respect of 600 tins of safety matches, imported by the steamer Tokushima Maru from Kobe.

Mr. J. Barrow, Assistant Superintendent of Import and Export, said the Department now had 109 convictions for this type of offence. Previously fined for a similar offence, the Asiatic Commercial Corporation, Bank of Canton Building, was again fined $25 for failing to declare the importation of 475.65 long tons of kerosene distillate aboard the Penrith Castle from Los Angeles.

Mr. Barrow: I am afraid I cannot say, your Worship.

Mr. G. S. Kennedy Skipton, who is shortly taking over Mr. Barrow's duties, and Mr. W. T. Lewis, of the Statistics Office, were present in Court.

Bank Clerk

His DeathIMPALED ON SPIKED WALL

A terrible tragedy occurred at Shamshuipo yesterday afternoon when a Chinese bank clerk named Chiu Tsui-ying threw himself off the roof of 19 Fuk Wing Street and was impaled on railings fixed to a wall at the rear of the premises. Four spikes entered his body and one passed through his arm.

The man was employed at the National Commercial Savings Bank, and was 32 years of age.

It appears that Chiu was walking down Fuk Wing Street with father and wife when suddenly he threatened to commit suicide. Breaking away from his relatives he ran up the stairs of No. 19 and clambered on to the roof. He went to the rear side and threw himself over the edge. As he fell he turned on to his side and fell lengthwise along the top of the spiked boundary wall between No. 19 and No. 20.

The Police were notified immediately and the Mongkok fire appliance summoned. When the Brigade arrived two ladders were placed on either side of the wall and the spikes were cut through just below the body. A rope was then tied to the body which was hauled up to the roof.

The deceased lived at 137, Fa Yuen Street with his wife and four children.

Shanghai, Nov. 14.

A sensation has been created in local Chinese circles by receipt of the news from Hangchow that Mr. Sze Liang-zai, Managing Director of Shun Pao, a leading Chinese newspaper at Shanghai, was murdered while travelling by the Shanghai-Hangchow Highway yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Sze Liang-zai recently made a tour of Hangchow in company with his family and was returning to Shanghai yesterday by private motor car. When his car was passing a point in Haining District, it was met by another motor, which was proceeding in the opposite direction, carrying a number of gunmen.

The gunmen ordered Mr. Sze's car to stop, but his driver refused to obey their order and drove on at full speed. Thereupon, the gunmen gave chase and opened fire, killing Mr. Sze, his driver and another person. The murderers escaped.

Mr. Sze's body was struck by shots, while his wife and son fortunately escaped. The bodies of the three victims have been removed to Hangchow.

Besides being well-known as a Chinese newspaper magnate, Mr. Sze was one of the most prominent persons in educational, social and philanthropic endeavours, being director of a number of universities, hospitals and charitable societies. He is also one of the most successful business promoters in Shanghai. He is financially interested in a number of banks, drug store, cotton yarn factories and book stores.

OPIUM AND HEROIN
POSSESSIONHEAVY SENTENCES IMPOSED

Three unemployed men were brought before Mr. E. I. Wynne-Jones at the Kowloon Magistracy this morning, on various charges of possessing opium and dealing in drugs.

"I have been instructed to offer no evidence against the defendant," said Revenue-Officer Humphreys, when Li Chung-ling, 39 years, was charged with dealing in opium and heroin pills at 101, Park Street, first floor, between September 11, and November 6. Defendant was accordingly discharged.

Arrested on the Kowloon Motor Bus Company's bus No. 81, with 61 tins of raw opium concealed in a specially-made jacket, Ho Kan-lun, 26 years, was fined $1,100, in default five months' hard labour. Revenue-Officer Browne appeared for the prosecution.

Leung Tin, 30 years, was charged with the possession of 645 heroin pills at 990, Canton Road, first floor, on November 6, and on pleading guilty he was fined $250, with the alternative of three months' hard labour.

It was stated by Revenue-Officer Humphreys who appeared for the prosecution that the pills were found concealed in a bottle under a pile of firewood on the verandah. Seven heroin pipes, an opium pipe, and six lamps were also found on the premises.

F. A. AND THEIR SCHOOLS COACHING PLAN

ONLY NIBBLING AT VERY VITAL QUESTION

NECESSITY OF SPENDING MORE MONEY TO ENSURE SUCCESS

By Frank M. Carruthers.

The old school of football legislators seem to find it hard to appreciate the outlook of to-day, and it is on this account that I am apprehensive concerning the scheme which is being prepared for the coaching of schoolboys.

A scheme on similar lines was first drawn up five or six years ago, but it was dropped into a convenient pigeon hole and it remained there until last year.

Then it was reported that it was to be launched on a big scale covering the whole country and embracing not only the schoolboys but amateur clubs. But once more it was dropped or forgotten.

Now it has been brought forward again in a restricted form and I am wondering whether it will again be shelved.

The special committee appointed to deal with the scheme met on October 16 and they must have been encouraged by the remarkable response which not only the public schools, who are still faithful to the Association game, but the elementary and secondary schools have already made to the proposal. Without exception the reply was: "We should welcome coaches to visit our schools."

There is an enormous opportunity to start a work which I think is bound to have splendid results in improving the standard of play of the boys, and it should not be forgotten that the juniors of to-day will be the seniors of to-morrow.

WHAT A TITLE.

At the moment the scheme is known as "Instructional classes for boys."

What a title! Whoever was responsible for it was surely lacking in imagination and had no vision or conception of the season on which the scheme might be developed.

It ought to be known as the "National coaching scheme," and unless it is promoted boldly and enthusiastically it will be in danger of falling through its restricted operation.

"What is it going to cost?" Some members of the association are all hot and bothered about this question.

I suggested that the F.A. ought to be prepared to sanction an initial outlay of £5,000 or more and afterwards to finance the working of the scheme each year. I do not see how the expense can be less if the object is to be realized.

I was told, "The sum you suggest is ridiculous. We cannot afford it."

The F.A., with their assured income, ought to be pleased to find so good a way of putting back into the game a trifling part of the huge sum they have taken out of it.

It is in this way that they insist that the clubs should use their money as the alternative to hoarding it.

An instructional film has been suggested, and the first query is, "What will it cost?"

And what will the coaches cost? The point I would make is that unless a scheme commensurate with the needs of the game is carried out the proposal had better again be deferred until some one bolder and with an adequate conception of the position is entrusted to tackle it.

DIRECTING HEAD WANTED.

The scheme will require considerable organisation, and I believe it will be a mistake to allow the county associations to carry it out.

There ought to be a directing head, a chief coach who would supervise the work of the staff and be responsible to the association. I know of no one better fitted for such a position than Arthur Grimdell, an old player of great character and distinction with Tottenham Hotspur, and who in recent years has undertaken considerable coaching work with Oxford University and other amateur teams.

Some authority, too, ought to lay down the lines on which the boys should be coached. In every case the system should be the same, and in this way it might be possible to establish an official style of English football.

The Transfer Market

THERE is still a certain amount of activity in the transfer market. At the moment wingers are in great demand, especially by First Division clubs. Since Joe Hulme has been dropped from the Arsenal side he has been sought after by others. Indeed, one club has made a definite approach for Hulme's services.

Another club in need of a winger is Norwich City, whose immediate need is someone to take the place of the injured Warnes. Wood, of West Ham United, is likely to be seen shortly in the Norwich colours. Preston North End have secured the transfer of Vernon, an inside or centre-forward, from Bury. He should add dash to the clever North End attack.

The Tennis Interport

Why Hongkong Failed To Win Series

"The trouble with the Hongkong team was that they were not sufficiently practised for hard court matches. We are so used to playing on grass down here that when we got on the sand we were unable to settle down in time," said Sirdar Rumjahn, in a talk with our representative yesterday on the Hongkong-Canton Tennis Interport which took place at Canton during the week-end.

"The Canton team are essentially singles players," said S.A. "The courts do not lend themselves to doubles play and I think it will be sometime before they will be able to produce a really good doubles team."

Commenting on the standard attained during the series Rumjahn said it was about on a par with the standard of the average Hongkong Championships taken over the past ten years.

"Bodiker and Lai, both played well during the series but they are too stereotyped. They do not seem to be able to change their game. They have one style of play and if that doesn't come off they collapse altogether. They beat us during the week-end because they were able to play their own game, and they played it consistently."

"The general impression I got was that the Canton people are taking their tennis more seriously than before. The moving spirits are Wong Po-keung, the donor of the cup, and Bodiker. The presence of Bodiker in the Canton side has acted as a great stimulant. It has produced a friendly rivalry—and a rivalry between the best representatives of the Chinese and foreigners is bound to stimulate interest."

COUNCIL TO MEET.

The monthly meeting of the Council will be held in the Association office, Hongkong Sports Club, on Monday next at 5.30 p.m. The draw for the first round of the Challenge Shields will be made.

Knotty Rugger Points

NEED OF STANDARDISATION OF LAW, INTERPRETATION

By CLEM LEWIS.

Apparently the interpretations given to some of our Rugby laws need standardising. During the past fortnight I have received 15 letters from various people, chiefly captains of smaller clubs, asking whether such-and-such is the proper interpretation of a certain law. The trouble would appear to be that they encounter referees who differ to the extent of being diametrically opposed. Here are a few of the points. I have been asked to adjudicate upon:

"A player taking a pass knocks the ball forward in the air, catching it again. The referee to-day allowed it, as others do. Most referees do not. Who is right?"

Unquestionably those who do not allow it, for the law says, "A knock on occurs when the ball, after striking the hand or arm of a player, travels in the direction of his opponents' dead ball line." Note, however, that the ball must strike the hand or arm of a player. It is not a knock on if it merely rebounds from the chest, when a hand or arm is not touched.

Now we come to consider a second query of equal interest to our fraternity:

"In taking a penalty kick, when the kicker is allowed to place the ball, is he allowed to touch it a second, and even a third time? Some referees order a scrum, whilst others allow the opposing side to charge upon the second touching."

Searching through the laws, I find nothing which says a penalty taker cannot touch the ball a second or even third time. Law 24, Section C, says: "All players of the opposing team must remain passive... until the kick has been taken." This in any case disallows any opponent charging. Should a player waste time over taking a penalty he himself can be penalised, according to Law 35. Here is a third query:

"A defending player kicks the ball dead from the field of play. Some referees order a scrum five yards out, whilst others order it at the spot from which the ball was kicked. Who is right?"

The proper ruling is to order a scrum at the spot from which the ball was kicked dead, even if it be on the half-way line. Law 32 decides this when it states: "If a defending player wilfully (or carelessly) kick, pass, knock or carry the ball back over his own goal-line, and it there be made dead, except in the case where a try is obtained, the ball shall be brought back and a scrum formed at the place from which the ball was kicked, passed, knocked or carried back."

A WRONG DECISION.

Note the insertion of the word "wilfully." Many referees ignore this altogether, and wrongly give a scrum when the ball accidentally touches a player in the field of play before being made dead.

Such a wrong decision is often given if a ball slips through a defending player's hands, and goes back over his goal-line to be made dead. A drop out at the "25" is the correct decision here.

Quite half a dozen players, chiefly belonging to London clubs, and referees differing over the following points:

"Is it legal for a player, a scrum-half, for example, to hook a ball out of his own or his opponents' pack with his foot, when it 'hangs' in the third row? Here Law 15 seems indelicate."

Section "I," however, may be the deciding factor. It reads: "No player shall handle the ball in a scrum or pick the ball up in a scrum by hands or legs, or intentionally fall or kneel in a scrum."

If the International Board wishes to clarify the laws of Rugby, they might add a further section to Law 15 stating that such hooking out of a scrum is unlawful. My own interpretation is that it is.

IN THE SET SCRUM.

I am also asked whether, in a set scrum, "on your opponents' goal line" you can get your forwards to push their opponents back over their own line, then get your own forwards to fall on the ball for a try.

The answer is undoubtedly "Yes." Law 26 dealing with a try, section B, reads: "If a team in a scrum pushes the other team over the latter's goal-line and then grounds the ball in-goal, it is a try."

Finally, almost without exception, my inquirers wish to know how I interpret the new hooking law. My own experience is that most referees are not bothering a great deal about it. What seems to be the majority of referees are allowing anything except the blatant cases of foot up. Many tell me the changed law is an ardent failure, and not worth worrying over, which decision the International Board should accept, and act upon.

Farewell To Borderers

There is a promise of a fine game between the South Wales Borderers and South China "A.O." on the Club ground on Sunday. This match will probably be the last occasion on which the Borderers will be seen in action before they sail on the Dorsetshire for India.

A large gate is expected to give the Borderers a farewell and to show appreciation of the good sporting spirit in which they have played soccer while in the Colony. The South Wales Borderers' Band, by kind permission of Lieut. Col. A. E. Williams, D.S.O., M.C. and officers, will be in attendance and will render selections on the field before the kick-off at 3.45 p.m. and during the interval.

At the conclusion of the game a silver cup will be presented to the winners by H.E. the G.O.C., Major General O. C. Borrett.

The gate receipts will be given to the Military Tattoo Fund. The ball for the game has been presented by Messrs. Gilman and Co.

FRIENDLY HOCKEY

H. K. S. R. A. Defeat Borderers

In a fast friendly hockey match played on the Marina ground yesterday afternoon, the Hongkong and Singapore Brigade, Royal Artillery, defeated the South Wales Borderers by three goals to one. Exchanges were fast and the game was keenly contested.

In the first half, the Brigade attacked early, Lieut. C. C. Garthwaite finding the net. Before the interval, however, the Borderers equalised through their centre-forward, John-son.

With the scores level on resumption of play, both teams strove hard to obtain the lead. Eventually, the Brigade penetrated the Borderers' stout defence, and scored through Lance-Nalk Khuda Bux. Before the final whistle was sounded, Lance-Nalk Aya Singh, the Brigade centre-forward, scored a third goal and put the issue beyond doubt.

Y.M.C.A. DRAW.

The European Y.M.C.A. met the Lincolns in a friendly hockey match on the King's Park ground yesterday afternoon, the result being a draw of one goal all. S. Fowler was responsible for the Y's point.

SERIAL STORY

The Clue Of The Forgotten Murder:

BEGIN HERE TO-DAY

CHARLES MORDEN reported for The Blade, telephone his newspaper an exclusive story about FRANK B. CATHAY of Riverview, wealthy and prominent, brought to police headquarters on suspicion of driving while intoxicated and accompanied by a pretty young woman who calls herself MARY BRIDGES, hitch-hiker.

Next day it is learned that the man was an impostor. The real Cathay demands damages and a retraction. DAN BLEEKER, junior publisher of The Blade, convinced that "something is fishy," sends Morden to Riverview to learn all he can about Cathay.

MRS. CATHAY calls on Bleeker and takes him to the Palace hotel for a conference with her husband's lawyer, CHARLES FISHER. Fisher says Cathay will forget his grievance if The Blade publishes a retraction. Bleeker agrees to do this.

Over the telephone next day KENNEY, city editor, learns that Morden has been murdered.

"I," said Bleeker, "sent that boy to his death."

CHAPTER VII

There was no answer from Bleeker, publisher of The Blade, but an abrupt, negative nod of the head. Kenney, city editor, pressed the receiver support down into place, then raised it again.

"Miss West," he went on, "this is Dick Kenney. Will you get me this Osborne on the line right away? Yes, I'll hold the line. . . hello, Bill, this is Kenney. Nixon has just been phoned in from headquarters. He's picked up a radio call. The police have found a body out on the outskirts of town. Sanborn and 192d streets. It's a subdivision that's gone sour. There are only a few houses out there. The police think the body is that of Charles Morden."

"Take Sam Lane with you. Go down to headquarters and get on the job. Contact the homicide squad. Tell them that Morden was working on an important matter and that we're going to move heaven and earth to get the thing cleared up. You can pass the word around that The Blade is going to expect results. . . You find out all the facts and then report back, and I'll give you a line on the stuff Morden was working on. You pick up Fred Nixon and the three of you drop everything else to get this thing cleaned up. Understand?"

He nodded his head and dropped the receiver back into place, turned a set, grim face toward Bleeker. "Poor devil," he said.

Bleeker made a fist, pounded it slowly on the desk. "Sent that boy to his death. I didn't know it, and he didn't know it, but that's what it amounted to. Poor devil! Just a newspaper man working on a case. He found out something and they ruined him out."

"Can we get any clues from what he was working on?" Kenney asked. "The body was found 20 minutes ago. He'd been dead 24 hours. The back of his head was smashed. He'd been taken out there and dumped."

"He telephoned yesterday," Bleeker said, "that he was working on a live lead. He had to play around with some woman to cultivate it. He didn't mention names. You go ahead and handle this thing, Kenney. Put as many men on the job as are needed. Morden was one of our boys. He was bumped off. We're going to avenge his murder. More than that, it's an insult to the paper. We're going to clean this thing up, if we have to move heaven and earth. I'm going to see Sidney Griff, the criminologist."

Kenney whistled. "There's more to this case," Bleeker went on, "than appears on the surface."

"Of course there is," Kenney said. "You know what it is and so do I. Morden was getting dope on Frank Cathay."

"But," Bleeker pointed out, "we made our peace with Cathay. The libel suit was called off."

"That doesn't mean that Morden had to forget what he'd found out, does it?" Kenney asked impatiently. "Morden found out something; Cathay killed him to keep it quiet."

Bleeker shook his head slowly. "Men are killed, Kenney, for fear, for gain, for vengeance, for fear, for jealousy. We can't figure where there was any revenge, gain or jealousy. Therefore, we jump at the conclusion it's fear and immediately figure Cathay was mixed up in it. But Cathay is a prominent citizen. If they'd be buried so deeply a casual investigation wouldn't have disclosed them in three days."

"Well," Kenney remarked, "Griff can tell us more about it. He's got the best criminologist in the country to-day. When you're talking with him, try and get some information out of him about a man by the name of Thomas Decker. Decker was a witness to the murder of Edward Shillingby, a private detective, Philip Lamson—the gangster they call 'Cincinnati Red'—is held under arrest.

The story goes that Decker was frightened because he was a witness. He went to Griff and Griff has buried him somewhere. He says he'll produce Decker at the time of trial, but that's all he'll say. There's a story in it if we could get Griff to talk."

"He won't," Bleeker said. "There's no harm in trying," Kenney insisted. "If you work on this Morden case with him you'll get chummy with him. Remember to ask him about Decker. In the meantime I'm going to work and dig out some more facts."

He left the room with quick, impatient strides.

Dan Bleeker, seated at his desk, got up and went on the telephone and said, "Hello, Sidney, I want the criminologist, not him. I want to see him upon a matter of major importance. I probably won't have all the time necessary to make a presentation of the case until after dinner to-morrow. I'd like to see him this evening."

Bleeker sat perfectly motionless. His busy, restless mind, his attitude toward life, his keenness for one of calm meditation upon some peaceful subject.

The telephone rang. Bleeker snapped the receiver from its rest and heard Ethel West say, "Mr. Griff will see you at 8:30 to-night if that is convenient."

"Quite," Bleeker said. "Now get me the editor of The Riverview Chronicle, in Riverview. Rush the call."

He dropped the receiver back into position but held his hand on it and when, within a matter of a minute and a half, the telephone rang, he snapped the receiver to his ear with a quick motion.

"Hello," he said, "is this Beckley of The Riverview Chronicle? This is Dan Bleeker of The Blue. We sent a man up to look over your clippings on Frank B. Cathay. A chap named Morden. Did you give him any information?"

Bleeker listened for a short time, then nodded his head. "Now," he said, "I want you to do something for me. There may be a big story in it. I want you to find out for me where Frank B. Cathay was yesterday afternoon. In the morning if possible, but in the afternoon for certain. I want to know where he made it. You can go to any necessary expense and send the bill to me. He's what? . . . Are you certain? . . . Check that, will you? Find out about the doctor. See if you can approach the nurse. They probably have two or three. Get all the information you can and telephone it in just as quickly as you can. That may be a matter of major importance. I'm calling on you because I know where you stand on the city election. I'm just asking you to extend me a courtesy which we have extended you in times past."

"You call me back just as soon as you find out. If I'm not here you can leave any information with Ethel West, my secretary."

Bleeker dropped the receiver back into position, left his private office and pounded through the outer office with swift, nervous strides. He turned to the right in the corridor, walked down a long, musty passageway, with a stock room occupying the space on the left, a photograph room on the right, a room for the typewriter, and the clock of pounding typewriters driven at high speed, and pushed his way into Dick Kenney's private office.

"I telephoned Beckley of The Riverview Chronicle," he said, "for a report on Cathay. He tells me that Cathay was taken very suddenly and seriously ill yesterday morning and has been in bed ever since. I told him to verify it. Illness is something that can be faked very easily. We can't even be certain of the physician. Cathay is a prominent man but we can probably find out something from the nurses. Beckley is working on it."

"You think Cathay and Morden had a conference somewhere?" asked Kenney.

"I'm not thinking anything just yet," Bleeker told him. "I'm getting facts. I have an appointment for 8:30 to-night with Sidney Griff. What have you found out from headquarters? Anything?"

"It's Morden all right," Kenney said grimly. "They can't tell the exact time of death yet, but it was some time yesterday afternoon, probably the early part of the afternoon. He was dumped out in the abandoned subdivision during the night, probably around 3 or 4 o'clock this morning. No one knows anything about how he got there."

The telephone on Kenney's desk shrilled into sound. Kenney frowned and pulled the receiver to his ear. "Kenney speaking," he said mechanically, then nodded to Bleeker. "It's for you," he said.

Bleeker took the receiver, said "Hello, this is Bleeker," and then nodded to Kenney.

"This is long distance," he said. "Riverview calling. They're coming on now. . . Hello, Beckley. . . yes. . . you're certain. . . there's no chance of a mistake. . . I see. . . okay. Thanks ever so much. It makes a good story for you at that end anyway. Huh. . . yes, we'll run something on it down here. Telephone us a complete report. I presume there'll be quite a scandal in Riverview. All right, if you'll send us in the story we'll give it a good play. Get all the facts and telephone us as soon as you get them. Within an hour if possible. You can get us the facts and we'll put a rewrite man on it."

He handed the telephone back to Kenney. Kenney replaced the receiver, dropped the telephone into position on the desk, and raised his eyebrows at Bleeker.

"What did you find out?" he asked. (To Be Continued.)

Dan Bleeker visits Sidney Griff, the famous criminologist, in the next instalment.

GOVT. STOCKS BOOMING

CONSOLS HIGHEST FOR 28 YEARS

London, Nov. 13. The upward movement of British Government stocks continued this morning and War Loan rose to a new high record quotation of 107, while Consols 2½ per cent. were quoted at 90, the highest for 28 years.

Later in the day there was a reaction on selling orders, and at the close War Loan was quoted at 100½ and Consols at 89¾.—British Wireless.

DOLLAR DECLINES SLIGHTLY

BUT MARKET QUITE STEADY

Reflecting the fall in silver prices in London, the Hongkong dollar declined ¼th this morning to 1s. 7¼d. The local market opened easy, inter-bank business being done at 1s. 7¼d., but later a steeper tone was evident, rates advancing 1/16th.

Silver declined ¾ths in London yesterday. China and speculators sold, while speculators and India bought at the fall, the market closing quietly steady.

CHINA—TIBET ACCORD

Nanking, Nov. 14. General Huang Wu-sung, Chinese Special Commissioner to Tibet, has wired the Nanking Government stating that he has successfully concluded his mission in Tibet and is prepared to leave there for Nanking in the next few days.

He said that both the Tibetan Government and the people fully appreciated the sincere attitude of the Central Government towards Tibet and had expressed their de-

YET ANOTHER MURDER

MAN FOUND STABBED TO DEATH

Grabs from a spot off Tai Po Road, near its junction with Cheungshawan Road, shortly before ten o'clock last night, attracted the attention of a passerby. He found a man obviously in great distress lying on the ground, but was unable to understand what the man said in a dialect thought to be Hakka.

When the man who made the discovery returned to the spot with the police some half-an-hour later, the victim of what appears to be murder, with robbery as a possible motive, was already dead. He had been pierced through the lung, the triangular shape of the incision suggesting that the weapon used was one fashioned from a file of that shape.

The murdered man was dressed in navy blue cotton clothes, with black shoes and socks and a felt hat. His appearance suggested that he was a fuki or one not much accustomed to rough labour.

AIR SERVICE SUBSIDIES

BRITISH FIGURE LOWEST

London, Nov. 13. Questioned in Parliament, the Under-Secretary for Air, Sir Philip Sassoon, said the approximate total amounts of subsidies as given in various estimates for expenditure on the operation of regular air services in the five years to 1933 were:—Britain, £1,021,134; France, £7,590,529; Germany, £4,482,105; United States, £19,008,803, the conversions of currency being reckoned at the par rates of exchange.—British Wireless.

termination to loyally support the Central Government.—Central News.

BRITISH FINANCE POSITION

DECLINE SHOWN IN LATEST FIGURES

London, Nov. 13.

Exchequer returns for the past week show that the total ordinary revenue to date, exclusive of self-balancing revenue, amounts to £3,463,957,281 and the total ordinary expenditure to £422,883,350. Revenue is nearly two million pounds lower than at the corresponding date last year, and expenditure seven millions higher.

Revenue from income tax, at £65,800,000, is now about £10,000,000 higher than the amount received at the corresponding date last year, but surtax returns are £720,000 lower, and estate duties, at £49,550,000, of which £1,800,000 was received during the last week, fall £6,530,000 below the total collected to November 11, 1933.

Receipts from Customs and Excise, at £179,568,000, are £2,384,000 more than last year's figures. Of the other items of revenue, miscellaneous receipts account for £11,450,000, as compared with £18,398,077 at the corresponding date last year.—British Wireless.

NO POLITICAL SIGNIFICANCE

SIR M. HANKEY'S TOUR

London, Nov. 13.

Answering a Parliamentary question, the Prime Minister said Sir Maurice Hankey's visit to South Africa, Australia and New Zealand had no political object.

He was visiting Australia as a guest of the Commonwealth Government for the Victoria Centenary celebrations and had been invited by the Governor of New Zealand to visit that Dominion. For personal reasons, he travelled by way of South Africa and would return via Canada.—British Wireless.
